<sup>3</sup> Cede & Co., which is not listed below, has record ownership of more than 80 percent of JPC's stock. Cede & Co. is the common stock nominee of both Stock Clearing Corporation (a subsidiary of the New York Stock Exchange) and all securities brokers and dealers using the facilities of Stock Clearing Corporation's "Central Certificate Service," a computer service established to facilitate the transfer of shares listed on the Exchange between member securities brokers and dealers. All shares handled by the Service are registered in the nominee name Cede & Co. Stock Clearing Corporation's rules prohibit it or Cede & Co. from voting any shares registered in that name except upon specific instruction of the broker, dealer or other organization for whose account shares are held.

<sup>4</sup> Certain present or past officers and/or directors of JPC and/or its subsidiaries possess options to purchase JPC stock. In no case would the exercise of any of these options result in any individual holding five percent or more of JPC's stock.

<sup>5</sup> No other parties hold cognizable "equity debt plus" interests in JPC as defined in 47 C.F.R. § 73.3555, Note 2, subsection (i).

Officers and directors of JPC for which attribution exemption is claimed are identified below. Attribution exemption is claimed because JPC is an insurance holding company for several subsidiaries; all but Jefferson-Pilot Communications Company (JPCC) are engaged in insurance and insurance-related operations. Together, the insurance-related subsidiaries own approximately 99 percent of JPC's consolidated assets. Accordingly, most of JPC's officers and directors devote their energies to insurance, not communications, matters. None of the individuals listed below for whom exemption is sought has duties or responsibilities that are directly or indirectly related to the activities of JPCC or its licensee subsidiaries, nor do any of said individuals exercise authority or influence (nor has any attempted to exercise authority or influence) in areas that affect JPCC or such subsidiaries. None owns as much as five percent of JPC's stock, and none has ever been given JPC's proxy to vote JPC's shares of JPCC. JPCC's own Board of Directors has the authority to and does establish the policies by which JPCC management operates JPCC, and those policies are established without consultation with, and without direct or indirect input from any of the exempt individuals listed below. JPCC's day-to-day operations have been and are conducted free from any involvement with any of said individuals. While certain of these exempt individuals currently sit on the Compensation Committee of JPC, which approves compensation levels for the senior officers of JPC and all of its subsidiaries, that Committee acts, as to JPCC, on recommendations made by JPCC's own Board of Directors.
