REF: Confirmation of no impact on other FCC Repack requirements as a result of accepting an order to supply and install the required WFWA-TV main and auxiliary antennas and transmission line system prior to FCC Repack Schedule Phase 6

Dear Mr. Kyle:

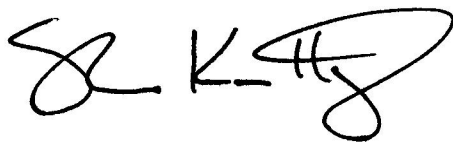

Please accept this letter as confirmation that Electronics Research, Inc. ("ERI") has reviewed the requirements for design, fabrication, tuning, final test, and installation of the full scope of services and equipment required and confirms that the acceptance of an order to supply the products and services offered to allow WFWA-TV to complete its FCC mandated transition from RF Channel 40 to RF Channel 18 by September 1, 2018, ahead of its originally scheduled Phase 6 transition date, will not impact orders that ERI has accepted prior to receiving an order from WFWA or other orders that are received after the acceptance of an order that is a result of this bid response submission.

ERI has made significant investments in facilities, equipment, and personnel in advance of the FCC's final transition plan and has made the preparations necessary to make this commitment to WFWA-TV and to other television broadcasters that are required to modify their transmission facilities as a result of the FCC Incentive Auction. In other words, ERI has prepared for this increase in demand for its products and services and can accommodate WFWA-TV's desire to complete its transition early without impacting its ability to meet other FCC Repack related obligations.

If you have questions or require additional supporting information please contact me at the telephone number or e-mail address below.

Respectfully submitted,

ELECTRONICS RESEARCH INC.
