

FED EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM STATEMENT

FEJ was founded on the premise that basic economic education is the necessary component of decision making within a democracy. Without understanding the economic foundations of a country's economy it is not possible to solve the many social and political problems that face our society.

FEJ States in its articles of incorporation that its purpose is educational in nature. FEJ understands that there are problems of inequality, there are problems of homelessness, problems of gender equity, problems of an aging population, problems related to immigration and most importantly a crisis of climate and environmental catastrophic proportions.

FEJ proposes to create broadcast programming both locally originating and syndicated to cover these issues and their underlying roots in the nature of the economy. Programming Includes: Debates, independent news, and issues of concern. Cultural programming featuring independent and grassroots voices. Airplay of historic, new, local, and independent artists.
