Dear Alex,

I have reviewed several episodes of the program "SCIENCE NOW" and I am confident that the series meets the educational and informational needs of children 13 to 16 years of age with its program content. The series is all about science and how it relates to everyday life. The series is an excellent example of how a television program can educate and illuminate all aspects of the scientific world to a teenage viewer. From laser technology to the importance of magnets to plant research to developing risk assessments for natural disasters, "SCIENCE NOW" features scientists from around the United States explaining complex issues in simple, understandable ways. I believe the series sparks interest in young viewers to further their studies in the science world while informing them of recent scientific developments.

"SCIENCE NOW" is educational, informative and entertaining, and an important part of any teenager's television viewing schedule.

Sincerely,

SERIES DESCRIPTION

ROCK THE PARK

Rock the Park is a weekly half-hour series produced and designed to educate and inform children 13-16 years of age and taps into America's love affair with our national parks. In this awe-inspiring and entertaining series our hosts, Jack Steward and Colton Smith, come face to face with nature and some of the most amazing places on earth. Viewers will witness the fascinating underwater world of Dry Tortugas National Park in Florida, which is home to the world's most unique coral and marine life. They'll watch as Jack and Colton raft their way through Alaska's remote Aniakchak National Monument and Preserve, spotting the region's famous brown bears. Viewers will reach new heights as Jack and Colton embark on their biggest climbing challenge yet - The Grand Teton in Wyoming's Grand Teton National Park.

RE: PROGRAM CONTENT

To Whom It May Concern:

The purpose of this letter is to provide television stations with certified documentation that the producers of the Rock the Park series design the program to educate and inform children 13- 16 years of age.

Litton Entertainment is the producer of the Rock the Park series.

This is a live action, half-hour television program designed to meet the educational and informational needs of children.

Rock the Park taps into America's love affair with our national parks. Our hosts, Jack Steward and Colton Smith, come face to face with nature and some of the most awe-inspiring places on earth. The series will inspire Americans to get on the road and remind viewers that the national parks are one of America's greatest national gifts to the world.

In order for parents, children, and listing services to clearly identify the programs as ones that fulfill the FCC programming requirements that meet children's educational television needs, each episode is closed-captioned and contains an E/I icon for the duration of the program with the recommended parental rating icon – typically, if not always, TV-G.

Sincerely,

RE: PROGRAM CONTENT

To Whom It May Concern:

The purpose of this letter is to provide television stations with certified documentation that the producers of Oh Baby! design the program to educate and inform children 13-16 years of age.

Hearst Media Production Group is the producer of Oh Baby!, a live action, half-hour television program specifically designed to meet the educational and informational needs of children within the age range specified above, furthering their intellectual and social development by exposing them to the concepts covered in the stories in Oh Baby!.

Oh Baby! will take viewers on a journey around the world to meet and observe some of the most curious and captivating wild baby animals. Audiences will discover how wild animal parents of numerous species teach their babies important survival skills that help them thrive in the many changing seasons. Hosted by Anji Corley, Oh Baby! will highlight a myriad of baby milestones from birth, to playing, to grooming, and learning valuable life-lessons from mom or dad. Each week, viewers will be immersed in a new environment and uncover fascinating facts about the wild baby residents and their families in a manner accessible and understandable to children 13-16.

In order for parents, children, and listing services to clearly identify the programs as ones that fulfill the FCC programming requirements that meet children's educational television needs, each episode is closed-captioned, contains an E/I icon for the duration of the program, and includes the recommended parental rating icon- typically, if not always, TV-G. Additionally, this E/I programming includes Audio Description, which provides enhanced detail of the program's visual content and allows the program to be more accessible to a wide range of viewers including those with learning disabilities, autism, and visual impairments. Sincerely,

Series Review

Title: Curiosity Quest

Episodes reviewed: 1

Program length: 30 minutes

Curiosity Quest features stories/topics that are generated by young viewers' questions, which are sent in to the host, Joel Greene, via e-mail. In this program, Joel Greene reviews and chooses a question from the many questions sent in by young viewers, and then plans a "field trip" to a place where that question can be answered.

Joel Greene begins the segment by reading a viewer's question and then explains where they will be going in order to answer that question, hence the name "Curiosity Quest". This segment's question was about how sea animals are fed.

Greene explains to the audience that in order to answer this question they will be taking a trip to the Monterey Bay Aquarium in Monterey, California. Greene is an entertaining and exciting host, who adds humor whenever there is an opportunity to do so. He talks with different professionals throughout the aquarium, asking them questions not only about how sea animals are fed, but also about many other topics pertaining to sea animal life. Throughout the segment, children and adults who are visiting the aquarium are asked questions about specific topics having to do with sea animal life and some answers are accurate, while others are very amusing.

As Greene asks questions to each of the professionals who work at the aquarium, more topics arise, such as animal health care, identification of bird species, food preparation for various types of animals and a variety of other interesting and educational facts and information. Each professional's role at the aquarium is very important to the well-being of the animals that are there and the whole experience of running an aquarium. The format of this series is youth centered and educationally based, while remaining entertaining and interesting throughout the entire segment.

The specific topic in this particular episode could be used to embellish a middle or high school marine biology or environmental studies class. Unless a video is truly educationally worthy, watching videos in classrooms is no longer an acceptable activity in most schools and districts throughout the country. Curiosity Quest is a show that would be acceptable and appropriate for student viewing in a variety of educational settings. This would also include home schooling, as well as parent/child TV watching for pleasure.

Thinking about careers is very important for students. In fact, high school seniors are encouraged to have a major in mind, as well as a possible future profession by the time they leave high school. This series exposes students to a variety of possible jobs and career paths for their future. Lastly, Curiosity Quest emphasizes how professionals work together to get a job done. This supports the need for being able to work as a team, which begins in kindergarten curriculum and continues through 12th grade.
