

Request for Waiver of Section 73.3539(a) as Applied by Section 74.780

Garden Valley Translator District ("GVTD") is a not-for-profit organization which is a part of Boise County, Idaho, and serves its community by receiving the broadcast signals of Boise television stations and relaying them over mountainous terrain so that community members may receive television service. GVTD operates with an all-volunteer governing board. The volunteers who serve on the board do not primarily work in the broadcasting field and are therefore not well-versed in FCC regulations.

While GVTD understands that licensees are expected to follow FCC rules, since GVTD operates as a service rather than as a business, its board has previously relied upon the services of a consultant in the field to assist it with compliance matters. GVTD was aware of the license expiration date of October 1, 2022, but not of the requirement that renewal applications be filed four months in advance of expiration. For someone not accustomed to doing business with the Commission, there was no reason to think that there was any particular amount of time in advance that was necessary for seeking license renewal, and indeed, even under FCC regulations, different types of licenses have different filing deadlines for license renewal applications.

Nonetheless, in late June 2022, the current Secretary of GVTD, who had volunteered to follow up on licensing matters, contacted the consultant who had previously handled Commission filings, only to find out that he was suffering from a serious illness and would not be able to assist in the filing of the license renewal applications. At that point, GVTD had no communications counsel and had received no communication from the FCC or anyone else that indicated that the license renewal was due and had not been filed. The very first indication to GVTD that there was an issue was a letter from the Commission dated July 11, 2022, which arrived shortly thereafter. GVTD then immediately began preparation of its license renewal applications, all of which were initially filed by July 28, 2022, no more than 17 days after receiving notice that the applications had not been filed.

This period is just over half of the time generally allowed by the Commission when it customarily sends out notices to licensees that have not filed renewal applications in the day or two following the due date. Those notices generally provide licensees with a period through the first day of the month following the renewal application's due date on which to file a renewal application without penalty. In this case, however, for a licensee which is not sophisticated in matters related to FCC regulations, the first notice was not received until 10 days after the general 30-day grace period had already expired. While GVTD understands that these notices are a courtesy, neither anyone at GVTD nor its consultant's office recalls seeing such a notice in June, and it is still the case that equity demands that a non-profit translator association which operates its stations solely as a service to its community should not be treated worse than far more sophisticated full-power commercial TV stations with greater resources. Moreover, the prompt filing after receiving notice of its inadvertent omission shows the seriousness with which GVTD regards Commission rules and policies.

All of the license applications are now on file and indicate no other violations of the Commission's rules over the entire last license term. Furthermore, GVTD's board has adjusted its continuity spreadsheet that reflects the renewal requirements so this error will not happen again. Accordingly, GVTD respectfully requests a waiver of the Commission's rules governing the timing of the filing of TV translator license renewal applications.

Furthermore, GVTD simply does not have the resources to afford to pay any significant forfeiture for eight translator stations. Attached hereto are copies of GVTD's bank statements for all of 2021 and for 2022 through the month of September. Also enclosed is a spreadsheet from the same period, outlining GVTD's income and expenses. GVTD is such a small operation that it does not prepare formal financial statements and has neither any audited books nor any balance sheet. GVTD has no bank accounts other than the ones for which the statements are attached.

GVTD's sole source of regular income is payments made by Boise County, Idaho for the purpose of maintaining the translator service to residents of remote portions of the county. As can be seen from adding up the figures contained in the attached statements, GVTD's total income from Boise County for 2021 was $11,200.17. Similarly, total amount received from Boise County for the period from January 1, 2022, through September 30, 2022, was $10,155.36. While it is uncertain how much additional funding GVTD will receive this year, the pattern since at least 2019 has been for only small amounts to be received in the last three years. If GVTD receives the same amount it did last year from October through December, its total income for 2022 will be $10,886.58. Thus, GVTD averages less than $1,000 a month in income that can be used for payment of ongoing expenses.

While it should be noted that the attached records reflect two additional payments from Treasury, one of $8,680.29 in July 2021 and one of $509.73 in March 2022, these were both repack reimbursement payments which simply provided reimbursement of actual expenditures related to a change in channel for K14SB-D and were not income to support the ongoing operation of any one or more of the translators.

Thus, with a total income which averages just over $900 per month, GVTD must pay all operational expenses, including electric bills for the power needed to broadcast, costs of insuring the transmission equipment, miscellaneous expenses such as postage, attorneys' fees, and all other incidental costs of operation. These costs would clearly include routine maintenance to ensure that the technical equipment remains in good operating condition, and such maintenance requires travel to remote, mountainous locations difficult to reach in winter. Further, any non-routine expenses that arise, such as necessary repairs or replacement of any part of the broadcast technical equipment, also must be paid out of the same, limited income stream.

Finally, not only is it essential that current operation be maintained, but provision must be made for future expenses. While broadcast transmission equipment is generally durably, nothing mechanical or electronic lasts forever, and evolution of technical standards sometimes requires the addition or replacement of equipment; therefore, GVTD must set aside funds to have on hand in the event that any of the equipment needs to be updated or replaced. Likewise, the need to repair or replace equipment also may arise in the event of a storm, wildfire, or other natural event. While GVTD has insurance to cover a substantial portion of such losses, there are always deductible amounts and other expenses that are not fully covered by insurance.

Taking all of these factors into account, it is clear that GVTD does not have the resources to pay a forfeiture. Moreover, since GVTD is a non-for-profit entity with an all-volunteer board, whose sole income comes from the county in which it operates, it is clear that any forfeiture would simply detract from the service which GVTD provides to remote viewers. Furthermore, the slight delay of less than 60 days in submitting the license renewal applications, with a filing done very quickly after notice of the oversight, does not indicate any disrespect for Commission rules, but rather the lack of detailed knowledge of those rules of the community volunteers on the GVTD board and the lack of knowledgeable outside counsel. Since renewal was sought before the translators' licenses expired, and those applications have been available for public comment for nearly four months, there has been no harm to the public interest, and even any disruption of the Commission's processes was slight.
