

The station went silent on 9/5/2022.

KIPL's transmitter failed last year. After getting back on the air, the transmitter failed again. The site is difficult to access requiring renting a helicopter to get to the mountaintop. There have also been issues gaining access to the transmitter building because of vandalism and problems with door locks. These issues have made it impossible thus far to do the work necessary to get back on the air.