

Telemundo of Puerto Rico, licensee of UHF Digital TV Translator W28EH-D (Facility ID: 64991), Adjuntas, Puerto Rico (the "Translator"), hereby requests Special Temporary Authority ("STA") for the Translator to remain silent. As widely reported and documented, Hurricane Maria destroyed Puerto Rico's power grid and rendered travel difficult and often impossible throughout many areas of the island. Further, as documented in the Commission's DIRS system, communications systems on the island have suffered substantial damage, rendering many facilities inoperable. Current predictions by local officials are that electrical power could be restored in three to four months.

We are now beginning to receive reports on the status of our facilities beyond the San Juan metropolitan area. While outwardly there is no visible damage to the Translator, due to the lack of power, we are unable to determine its operational status.

Our engineer is planning to travel to the Translator with a portable generator in the near future in order to perform testing. At that time, we hope to have a clearer picture of its viability.

For the reasons detailed herein, we ask the Commission to grant this STA request.
