E. During the last 12 months, the station employment unit engaged in the following initiatives:

WFDD conducts numerous internship and training sessions to expose participants to careers in radio:

1. Radio Camp, (June 17th – 21st in Winston-Salem, June 24th – 28th in Greensboro, July 15th – 19th in Boone and July 22nd – 26th in Winston-Salem. Advanced Radio Camp for returning students who have requested to learn more about radio July 29th – August 2nd in Winston-Salem) WFDD conducted a day camp for middle school students where WFDD staff train students in the use of broadcast software and equipment, as well as, how to write, voice and create a radio interview for broadcast on WFDD. Students have returned to volunteer and help other students with camp. Student stories are broadcast every Saturday morning at 8:35 on 88.5 WFDD.

2. Radio 101 is a semester long class where high school students are taught by WFDD staff how to create, write, voice and edit a radio editorial story that airs on WFDD. Radio 101 runs the entire school year while school is in session. This program is taught for credit, in partnership with our local high school. This year WFDD also held Radio 101 after school sessions for students attending high-school anywhere in our listening area. Six students participated and we are actively recruiting students for the upcoming school year. Radio 101 stories air on WFDD on Saturday mornings at 8:35 during news programming.
3. The station offers a formal radio internship program with Wake Forest University, and an informal internship program with other area colleges and schools to allow members of the community to work in the radio station and explore their interest in broadcasting. Tracks include: news production, reporting, operations/engineering, sales and marketing. This year WFDD hosted 6 internships.
4. We continue to work with Wake Radio, Wake Forest University's student run radio station. WFDD trained students in broadcasting and now airs Wake Radio content on WFDD's HD3 digital channel over the air allowing students the opportunity to work with broadcast professionals and follow FCC regulations while broadcasting to our 32 county listening area. Wake Radio is also streamed online from the WFDD web site at wfdd.org. WFDD has been the guiding force to keep this service available to students and we are looking at ways to increase listening to the station.
5. WFDD hosts a January -Term intern from Salem Academy every year. This is a for-credit program for 11th - and 12th-grade girls at Salem Academy, a girls' college preparatory boarding and day school. Students select an area business where they serve as an intern over the course of three weeks in January, after which they create a presentation demonstrating what they learned during their internship.

In addition to the above programs, the WFDD staff conducts tours, attends career fairs and participates in panel discussions throughout the year. WFDD Staff also participated in the following activities:

1. Presentation and information session - Youth Storytellers event in High Point – July 18, 2018.
2. Presentation – Wake Forest Journalism class – August 31, 2018.
