Section 3: A list and brief description of Long-Term (or “Prong 3”) non-vacancy-specific recruitment initiatives implemented during the previous year.

The population of the market for this environment unit is fewer than 250,000, and the stations are therefore required to complete 2 long-term recruitment activities every year. The Public Media job fair and the Murrow Symposium are submitted for this requirement along with additional initiatives.

Virtual Job Fair

In March 2021, NWPB participated in a national virtual job fair sponsored by Public Media. The one-day event included a virtual booth for NWPB where information about the organization and current and future positions were posted and. During the event, several NWPB staff were available to talk to individuals who were interested in our programs and working for us. NWPB staff involved: Kerry Swanson, Station Manager; Hannah Snyder, Operations Manager; Cricket Cordova, Account Executive; Doug Krehbiel, Administrative Director.

The Edward R. Murrow College of Communication at Washington State University
Career Symposium and Public Address/Hosting Job Fair

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the College’s regularly sponsored April event, the Murrow Symposium Career Day, was conducted in a virtual format. This event features workshops where students and faculty of the College attend discussions on the future of the communication industry. Also, during the Meet the Pros event, professionals from the fields of broadcast, marketing and print media are available to answer questions and provide employment feedback and opportunities for career connections. Staff: Kerry Swanson, Station Manager; Sara Stout, Director, Student Services; Corrie Wilder, Marketing Director; Bruce Pinkleton, Dean, College of Communication.

College sponsored student organizations and initiatives

Murrow College sponsors student programs, clubs and scholarship which promote diversity in the communication and broadcast fields. These include the Association for Women in Communications, study abroad opportunities and scholarships directed specifically at under representative groups such as Native Americans, Hispanic and women student scholars.

Additional long-term initiatives

Northwest Public Broadcasting - Television

Internship Program

The Northwest Public Broadcasting – Television (NWPB-TV) Internship program is designed to give staff

the opportunity to involve themselves more deeply in training of student and part-time employees and gain knowledge to perform at a higher level. The program is based on that of another noncommercial educational station, which provides a model for this type of two-way training that is so valuable in broadcasting, especially in a small market where recruiting and retention of qualified individuals is difficult and poses a significant challenge. Examples of internship projects include working as crew members for many on and off campus projects supported by NWPB-TV; working as program producer and production assistant; assistance with maintaining NWPB-TV web site, creating content for our social media platforms; and editing of programs for use on-air and off. During the period between October 1, 2020 and September 30, 2021, NWPTV had 3 interns. Due to restrictions from the pandemic, we made adjustments including conducting all weekly meetings and work assignments virtually. Staff: Marvin Marcelo, General Manager; Greg Mills, Producer and Editor.

Training Programs for Stations Personnel/Mentorship Program

Washington State is determined to strengthen its program in the television area, by promoting the idea to staff and by creating specific job descriptions for the student-mentoring positions. In addition to enabling staff to “teach” others, we also have a policy that allows employees to take up to 6 credits of university credits per semester under a tuition-waiver program. The licensee supports this as a way of recruiting qualified individuals to this rural area and to retain and retrain current employees in order to advance. The organization continues to reap the benefits of this mentoring program. Responsible staff: Marvin Marcelo, General Manager; Doug Krehbiel, Administration Director.

Events or Programs with Educational Institutions Relating to Broadcasting Careers

NWPB-TV staff sent emails to several professors of communication classes at Washington State University. The purpose was to inform students of intern opportunities with the station and how it might help them develop career skills in both television and radio. This internship program was also promoted to students on the station’s website. Staff: Greg Mills, Producer/Editor

Northwest Public Broadcasting – Radio

Internship Program

Northwest Public Broadcasting – Radio (NWPB-R) operations has an active internship program. The staff of NWPB-R regularly participates in area college and high school career days in our broadcast region. Students learned more about public broadcasting, received information on how to get involved, and what internship opportunities exist. COVID-19 curtailed many of NWPB’s internship opportunities due to social distancing, office and studio occupancy limitations, and WSU being on a predominately on-line class structure. However, during the period from October 1, 2020 to September 30, 2021, NWPB-R had internship positions filled including internships in News Production, Broadcast Operations and Programming. Staff involved: Hannah Snyder, Operations Manager; Scott Leadingham, News Director.

Events with Community Groups Relating to Broadcasting Career Opportunities

The station also regularly hosts tours and open houses for community groups, volunteers and general public to visit the station. However, with COVID-19, many of these opportunities were not possible to accommodate. Nonetheless, NWPB-R staff found opportunities to speak in front of students in virtual classroom or special presentations about careers in public broadcasting in general and opportunities at Northwest Public Broadcasting specifically. NWPB-R is also involved in local community events, musical performances and fairs and distributes information about the station and opportunities with members of the public at these events. The staff of NWPB-R serve on many community groups such as Wenatchee Downtown Association, Rotary and Kiwanis, within these organizations and their activities, NWPB-R staff are recognized and invited to work with youth and community volunteers. Staff involved: Kerry Swanson, Station Manager, Sandi Billings, Development Director; Tom Hungate, Operations Manager; Thom Kokenge, Radio Host; Anjuli Dodhia, Music Director.

Due to the COVID-19 pandemic, most opportunities to give presentations and in career fairs in which NWPB staff regularly participate were cancelled during the reporting period. However, NWPB used sources such as electronic newsletters, student listservs and other social media means to let interested persons know about the opportunities with NWPB.

Continued training for personnel

Northwest Public Broadcasting – Radio is committed in encouraging personnel to continue with job training by attending conferences which will help them acquire skills that could qualify them for higher level positions. Responsible staff: Marvin Marcelo, General Manager; Doug Krehbiel, Administration Director, Kerry Swanson, Station Manager.

Washington State University

The Edward R. Murrow College of Communication and Northwest Public Broadcasting are part of Washington State University (WSU). Both areas are committed to following WSU's plans and initiatives regarding Equity and Diversity. Equity and Diversity is an important aspect of everyday life at Washington State University. WSU provides institutional leadership in recruiting, retaining, and rewarding diverse faculty and staff; educating the campus and beyond about issues of diversity; and offering unique facilities that help students, faculty, and staff honor and celebrate the many cultures represented in the community. The Strategic Plan for Washington State University includes: create and sustain a university community that is diverse, inclusive, and equitable; recruit, retain, and advance a diverse intellectual mix of faculty, staff, and students, including women and those from under-represented groups; assure diversity and inclusion efforts are visibly and consistently supported at the highest levels of leadership; and maintain respectful, inclusive, and equitable behavior in all university environments.
