

REASON FOR SILENT STA

Despite the fact that the station's main computer is protected by a UPS that incorporates surge protection, a nearby lightning strike during a recent storm caused a failure of the power supply in the computer that hosts the station's music library and other critical functions. Without it the station is essentially inoperative, and so has suspended operations until the power supply can be repaired and the computer be placed back in service.