

EDUCATIONAL PURPOSE STATEMENT

Delta 2000, a 501(c)3 organization based in East Contra Costa County, hosts a network of local nonprofit and public service organizations, and founded the Rivertown Resource Center in partnership with county and local municipal agencies. Over the past two decades we have assisted numerous nonprofits, guided start ups, and served as fiscal sponsor, including for media training programs initially developed through the Antioch Unified School District, and made available to high school & college students, adults, seniors, and nonprofit members across the East County area.

Since 2013, resources were secured to establish a radio production and training studio. Through ongoing activities with our network of community organizations, we will utilize the noncommercial FM radio license to further our goals to engage an increasingly diverse population.

We will leverage FM radio and social media platforms to increase outreach, educational programming, and provide an important public service. Featured content will highlight the local nonprofit community, offer showcases for local artists and musicians, provide a platform for local journalists and subject matter experts, and cover community events.
