CMU is a public university founded in 1892 in Mount Pleasant, Michigan. CMU has an enrollment of over 20,000 students and offers approximately 300 academic programs at the bachelor's, master's, specialist's, and doctoral levels. CMU has seven academic units (College of Business Administration, College of the Arts and Media, College of Education and Human Services, College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences, College of Science and Engineering, The Herbert H. and Grace A. Dow College of Health Professions, and the College of Medicine). In addition to its main campus in Mount Pleasant, CMU maintains off-campus programs at many locations throughout the U.S., Canada, and Mexico, as well as offering online courses.

As one of CMU's principal public service commitments, CMU Public Broadcasting has provided television and radio programming and other outreach activities to residents of central and northern Michigan for over 40 years. CMU Public Broadcasting's mission is to: inform and entertain its viewers and listeners throughout central and northern Michigan with programming and services that reflect and respect the cultures of its state and world, present a balanced schedule of thoughtful programs that have the potential to change lives, bring arts and culture to central and northern Michigan by organizing and promoting university and community events, and to identify and bring together university and community experts and resources to address issues relevant to the communities it serves.

As a long-time licensee of several noncommercial educational television and radio stations, CMU has clearly demonstrated its commitment and ability to provide educational broadcast programming. CMU will continue to deliver the highest quality educational programming to its existing and proposed service areas and will use WFCX(FM) to expand this service to additional radio listeners in the Leland area. CMU plans to broadcast national programs, such as the award-winning programs available through NPR, as well as high quality local programs addressing news, public affairs, performing arts, and other issues of concern and interest to residents of its listening areas.
