CHARACTER ISSUES RELATING TO INTERMOUNTAIN WEST COMMUNICATIONS COMPANY AND ITS SUBSIDIARY LICENSEE COMPANIES

Intermountain West Communications Company (formerly Sunbelt Communications Company) ("Intermountain") and its several subsidiary licensee companies, including Oregon Trail Broadcasting Company, the permittee of digital TV Translator Station K40MS-D, Pocatello, Idaho, have been subject to certain character issue allegations.

Another Intermountain subsidiary, Beartooth Communications Company ("Beartooth"), the licensee of Station KTVH(TV), Helena, Montana, was challenged with alleged character issues when it filed for certain television translator and booster stations in Montana. The grounds for this challenge was that Intermountain had made misrepresentations about its financial and technical qualifications and had violated the FCC's multiple ownership rules. Although the pleading cycle on these matter was completed on May 17, 2004, the matter remains pending before the Commission.
