Subject:	INFORMAL OBJECTION TO ALL PENDING TRANSFER APPLICATIONS FROM R MEDIA TRUST TO R COMMUNICATIONS TRUST
Attachments:	Background- Gonzalez family (Mar. 2015).pdf

Dear Mr. Brown,

In light of the fact that I am not familiar with what I am sure would be extensive legal nomenclature, I would like to request, in this informal email objection, that the all pending transfer applications from R Media Trust to R Communications Trust, (listed at the end of the following documentation) be placed on hold pending the outcome of the ongoing investigation by the United States Department of Justice, San Antonio office, into the Gonzalez family and their extensive involvement in U.S. Business Trusts which fund the acquisition, purchase, and administration of a number of radio and television stations throughout south Texas.

For the record, since I am not an attorney, nor do I have one at my "disposal", I was unable to interpret the myriad of instructions on the website at FCC.gov in order to file an Informal Objection using those forms, not to mention any number of confusing steps, as well as the fact that the parties would have to be served, which could literally prove a threat to my personal safety.

Indeed, it is the parties themselves that are hereby called into question.

Reasons to file Informal Objection(s) include:

- Lack of appropriate incorporation status. [Note: All entities involved in the proposed transfers are, by definition Business Trusts, each of which is headed - singularly - by a Sole Proprietor: Roberto Gonzalez, R Media Trust, and Robert L. Reed, R Communications Trust.
- A challenge to whether 75% of the board members actually live in the service area of the station. {To my knowledge, none of the Business Trusts have boards: both Roberto Gonzalez' R Media Trust and Robert L. Reed's R Communications Trust are Limited Liability Corporations. Mr. Gonzalez [purportedly] lives in Del Rio, and Mr. Reed lives in Scottsdale, Arizona - clearly out of ALL service area(s) for each and every station.]
- A challenge stating that the "parties to the application" are not really the people in control of the organization. [Note; Please see references throughout regarding the ongoing investigation by DOJ attorney Russell Leachman into the Gonzalez family, as well as the public information regarding the individual parties to date who have been either implicated, arrested and/or awaiting trail, (i.e., Rolando Gonzalez, Raul Gonzalez Trevino (whose mansions in San Antonio have been seized by the federal government), and/or convicted, (i.e., Raul Gonzalez Fernandez).]

I would like the FCC to take note of the following public information included in the documentation which follows:

- In 2012 R Communications, under the name MB Revolution Inc, owned radio stations in Ulvalde and Eagle Pass

- This company, (a business trust LLC) operated with two licensee names, MBM Radio Eagle Pass and MBM Radio Ulvalde
- At the same time, the "umbrella" business trust, R Media Trust LLC owns 27 radio stations and 1 Television Station (KMBH-TV, Harlingen).

Also in support of this Informal Objection, I include public information/documentation from local media sources, both in the United States and Mexico. [Note: The articles from the Mexican media have been translated into English utilizing "Google Translate".]

Furthermore, according to the Assistant General Counsel for the Texas Department of Banking, Mary Kelly Pauwells,

"...a business trust is a form of business organization similar to a corporation. [The Texas Department of Banking] does not charter or regulate business trusts as such."

Therefore, unless there is an investigation into a trust by an entity such as the Department of Justice, the funds in any Limited Liability Corporation are allowed to derive - legally or illegally - from any source.

I look forward to the FCC's investigation into these matters.

Sincerely,

Sue Groves

Subject: The latest info on the media empire Gonzalez brothers, (R Communications/KMBH-TV)

Dear Mr. Harding,

Perhaps due to arrest of Rolando Gonzalez Trevino, his father, Roberto Casmiro Gonzalez Trevino, is in the process of transferring multiple media entities of R Media Trust to R Communications Trust, which is based in Scottsdale, Arizona.

The multimillion dollar home of Raul Gonzalez, (Roberto's brother) in San Antonio has already been seized by the feds. and his Raul's son (Roberto's nephew). pled guilty recently in federal court to drug charges.

All these applications were filed Feb. 5, 2015, although my focus is KMBH-TV, the local PBS affiliate, the sale of which was only finalized in Jan. 2015 to R Media Trust from RGV Educational Broadcasting (the Diocese of Brownsville). (See attached press releases, dated Feb. 10, 2015, AFTER the transfer application was filed.)

Also, attached is a copy of Form 315. for the KMBH proposed transfer. Note: Contact Info for Robert Reed, according to transfer application:

There still seem to be a lot of unanswered questions including:
- The radio station in Eagle Pass, mentioned below with Rolando as the "owner". is owned by Mbm and LLC - dba R Communications (who just purchased KMBH, the PBS affiliate in Harlingen). See attached list of companies - LLCs - "headed by Roberto.];
- "In 2006, an unidentified co-conspirator ordered Coahuila government officials to pay 100 million pesos, or more than $7 million, of state money to another unidentified co-conspirator, according to the indictment. Around the same time, the first co-conspirator told a government official that he wanted to buy media outlets in Coahuila." [Note: Roberto Casmiro Gonzalez Trevino's media empire is BASED in Coahuila. Also, is it mere "coincidence" that there are two 'UNIDENTIFIED co-consipators'? Two BROTHERS, perhaps?..];
- "González and his family own radio and television companies in Mexico, and the indictment alleges that he discussed with the co-conspirators the sale of media properties for 25 million pesos, or about $1.8 million." [See attached info on R Communications.]

Finally, in 2007, Roberto and his brother Raul were also implicated in a cash smuggling scheme. (See attached excerpts from the DEA Report which appeared on Scrib'd, Jan. 2014.)

Would you care to comment on any or all of this material BEFORE the transfer application is granted?

Thank you in advance for your prompt attention to this matter.

Coahuila businessman charged in ongoing money laundering investigation

By Jason Buch and Guillermo Contreras
Rolando González Treviño was arrested Oct. 31, 2014, in Las Vegas by deferal agents, He is the brother os a media mgnate from Coahuila and is facing charges in a wide-ranging probe into money allegedly stoelmn from the state later laundered in San Antonio and South Texas.

Rolando González Treviño was arrested Oct. 31, 2014, in Las Vegas by deferal agents, He is the brother os a media mgnate from Coahuila and is facing charges in a wide-ranging probe into money allegedly stoelmn from the state later laundered in San Antonio and South Texas.

In meetings at the Club at Sonterra in Stone Oak and at the Coahuila governor's mansion in Saltillo, Mexico, in 2009, officials from the border state and a businessman with San Antonio ties discussed using stolen money to buy media properties, according to a federal indictment unsealed Monday.

That spring, the conspirators paid nearly $2 million to Rolando González Treviño, a Mexican businessman who owns several pieces of real estate in San Antonio and a TV station in Eagle Pass, the indictment says.

Federal agents in Las Vegas arrested González as he stepped of a commercial flight with his family Friday night. He's charged with conspiracy to commit wire fraud, conspiracy to transport stolen property and conspiracy to launder money.

González faces up to 20 years in prison if convicted of the money laundering and wire fraud charges, which are the most serious. Prosecutors are also asking for a $1.8 million judgment against him.

His lawyers said the charges were kept secret all weekend. González denies doing anything wrong.

"He didn't do what he's accused of," said San Antonio attorney Brandon Hudson.

González's arrest is the latest development in a sprawling investigation into allegations that money stolen from the state of Coahuila was laundered in San Antonio and elsewhere in South Texas. A half-dozen people have been charged in the case, and prosecutors have moved to seize tens of millions of dollars in bank accounts and real estate.

In 2006, an unidentified co-conspirator ordered Coahuila government officials to pay 100 million pesos, or more than $7 million, of state money to another unidentified co-conspirator, according to the indictment. Around the same time, the first co-conspirator told a government official that he wanted to buy media outlets in Coahuila.

The outlets aren't identified, but the indictment alleges that in February 2009, members of the conspiracy traveled to San Antonio in a private plane to meet with González at the golf club. González and his family own radio and television companies in Mexico, and the indictment alleges that he discussed with the co-conspirators the sale of media properties for 25 million pesos, or about $1.8 million.

A month later, a Coahuila state official met with two of his employees at the governor's mansion in the capital of Saltillo where another co-conspirator gave them bank account numbers for González, the indictment alleges. In April and May 2009, González received a series of wire transfers from private companies in Mexico totaling about $1.8 million, according to the indictment.

Court records don't explain which media companies were purchased or if the money that was allegedly stolen from the state of Coahuila was wired to González.

González comes from a prominent family in Coahuila. A brother, Roberto Casimiro González Treviño, is a media mogul who critics say supported former Gov. Humberto Moreira and his Institutional Revolutionary Party.

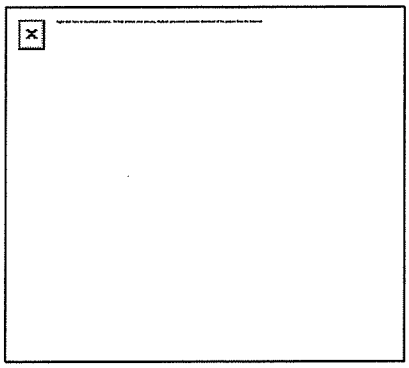

Another brother, Raúl González Treviño, was Moreira's spokesman in San Antonio. His son Raul González Fernandez pleaded guilty last month in federal court in San Antonio to a drug conspiracy charge.

The family has been caught up in a U.S. investigation into allegations that state officials and unscrupulous businessmen laundered tens of millions of dollars in San Antonio.

During Moreira's term in office from 2005 to 2011, the state government racked up nearly $3 billion in debt.

Roberto Casimiro González, Raúl González and Moreira haven't been charged with any crimes.

Two people have pleaded guilty in the investigation so far, including Coahuila's former treasurer, Héctor Javier Villarreal.

Villarreal (left)pleaded guilty in September to one count of money laundering conspiracy and one count of internationally transporting of stolen money. He was accused in court documents of taking out loans on the state's credit and handing out government contracts in exchange for bribes.

Villarreal agreed to turn over $6.5 million in bank accounts that he controlled

Charges are pending against Jorge Juan Torres López, the former interim governor of Coahuila.

Rolando González owns a television company in Mexico and in recent years has expanded his business into Texas. A limited liability company he controls owns a TV station in Eagle Pass. Other companies he controls own San Antonio properties including empty lots, a house on the far North Side and a small office building on the Northwest Side.

He and other family members have purchased more than a dozen properties in San Antonio since 2007.

4 1/2 years for son of Mexican media mogul

Mexican drug cartels rake in loads of cash through various means, many of which are quite unsavory. See some of the lesser known ways they're

A judge sentenced Raul Gonzalez Fernandez, the son of a prominent Mexican media mogul with business interests in San Antonio, to four 1/2 years in prison Thursday for his part in a cocaine conspiracy.

Gonzalez pleaded guilty in October to conspiring to possess more than five kilograms of cocaine in connection with a 2011 drug bust in the medical center. His attorney, Cynthia Orr, said Gonzalez only introduced a local club promoter to a man he knew from his days in the media business in Mexico. That man, who owned a house in San Antonio and was later killed in the Mexican city of Torreon, was the drug supplier.

Gonzalez wasn't involved in the drug deal, Orr said. "He was charged with being sort of willfully blind to what they were doing," she said.

Gonzalez, a U.S. citizen, was arrested in 2013 as federal prosecutors moved against a number of Coahuila businessmen and politicians with ties to San Antonio. His father, Raul Gonzalez Treviño, was the state's spokesman in San Antonio. He wouldn't comment after the hearing.

An uncle, Rolando Gonzalez Treviño, was arrested last year and charged with conspiring to commit wire fraud and money laundering and conspiring to to transport stolen money. He has pleaded not guilty.

A judge also ordered the younger Raul Gonzalez to pay an $85,000 fine.

Mr. Herrera brings more than 30 years of radio management experience to the table. Prior to joining Border Media's Rio Grande market, Romeo was Operations Manager at Border Media in Austin, and was Corporate Brand Manager of Regional Mexican and Spanish Oldies radio formats from 2006 to 2007. He began his career as Director of Programming and News at Clear Channel Communications' network in Mexico from 1979 to 2005, overseeing 130 radio stations of the company across the country. He is responsible for the RGV Brands, On-Air Content, Talent Management, interfacing with Promotions and Sales, and developing efficient logistics involved in the complex operations of the stations.

Felix Almanza – Executive Vice-President of Accounting and Administration

Involved in broadcasting for 15 years, Mr. Almanza has worked for Spanish Broadcasting System, Entravision, Clear Channel, BMP Radio and R Communications. Experience includes turning around collections deficiencies with all companies for whom he has worked. Entravision A/R over 120 days was at 30% which he brought down to less than 2%, Clear Channel A/R over 120 days was at 42%, which he brought down to less than 1%, and BMP Radio was at 36% over 120 days, which he brought down to less than 2%. He helped turn around the Clear Channel Radio San Antonio Accounting and Traffic department from what some viewed as a "Toxic" environment to one of the most efficient and respected in the company. His experience includes hiring and training new Auditing department employees. Most recently, he was responsible for setting up Accounting/Traffic Department procedures for R Communications.

Bob Proud – Executive Vice-President and Western Region Manager

Mr. Proud has recently joined R Communications and is well acquainted with many of the R Communications stations, having previously spent over 8 years as Senior Vice President of Operations for Border Media, which he helped grow from a start-up to over 30 million dollars in gross revenue in its first two years. As a Certified Radio Sales Manager, Mr. Proud is equally experienced in sales as well as the operational side of the business, both in Spanish and general market radio. He has led stations and clusters to record revenue growth on multiple occasions as a Market Manager and/or Sales Manager in Dallas, Houston, Denver and El Paso. His involvement in Hispanic media dates back to the early 80's, and it has been his primary focus for the past 30 years. His early career was as a Program Director and air personality at top-rated stations in Cleveland, South Bend, Denver, and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico.

[Note: the Connection between R Communications and BMP Radio, Also known as Border Media Partners is significant:

BMP Radio, also known as Border Media Partners, was a privately owned Hispanic focused radio broadcasting company headquartered in Houston, Texas. On July 17, 2009, Radio-Info.com announced that BMP would be seized by its banks after failing to make debt payments for two years. Ten days later, it was confirmed that Goldman Sachs Group, Vestar Capital Partners, and D.B. Zwirn & Co. seized the business and the assets are expected to be liquidated. It was reported that President Jeff Hinson is expected to step down by July 31. This occurred as expected, and station owner and station broker Larry Patrick was named trustee and engaged to dispose of the stations and return any monies to the lenders.
During the 2009 Texas Association of Broadcasters meeting in Austin, Texas it was reported that the McAllen and Laredo area stations would be assigned to a U.S. affiliate of the companies that own the Mexican stations programmed by BMP. News further indicated that KWOW-Waco had a signed letter of intent. KWOW has now been sold to the Bill McCutcheon interests.
In October 2013, the last of BMP, the cluster in San Antonio, was sold to Larry Wilson's L&L Broadcasting for $31M.

 Two weeks ago, an employee at an R Communications station in McAllen, KURV, showed me a copy of his paycheck, issued by Border Media Partners (as the employer), NOT R Communications.]

Economy in RGV:
CNN recently named the Rio Grande Valley as one of the best places to launch a new business.
The economy in the Rio Grande Valley depends on agriculture and tourism. There are over 2,000 maquiladoras (Fabrication plants) directed by North American enterprises, Japanese Enterprises and a few other foreign firms.
On the Mexican side, Reynosa has occupied the first three places on a national level for employment generation and investment.
Reynosa is the 5th most important growth market in Mexico and the most important in the state of Tamaulipas.

Why TV?
TV is the perfect compliment to our radio systems already in place and proven effective to our clients and listener audience.
In the Rio Grande Valley R Communications is the top radio biller in the market.

Univision is the top biller in RGV for Television.
Televisa is run out of a station in Mexico with a coverage of 300 kilowatts.
MundoFox is currently running out of a station in Mexico with a coverage of 100 kilowatts.
In other words, the key players in the market are running from other cities.
This creates our greatest weakness, being the smallest local player in the market and our greatest strength is being the smallest LOCAL player in the market

EU seeks to seize home of Raul Gonzalez Treviño

Background: Gonzalez family (Mar. 2015)
Recap for David Brown, FCC

The U.S. government seeks to seize in San Antonio, Texas three mansions of businessman Raul Gonzalez Treviño, of which one of them was owned by Vicente Yáñez Chaires, partner of former Gov. Humbero Moreira.

González Treviño, who served as representative of the Government of Coahuila during the presidency of Humberto Moreira, [now] fac[es]American justice action to seize their property, after his son Raúl González Fernández was arrested on Monday, following an accusation promoted in September for conspiracy to possess drugs with intent to distribute more than 5 kilograms of cocaine and marijuana.

According to a newspaper of the city of San Antonio Gonzalez Treviño, 42, is in custody waiting to be put on trial and authorities are investigating whether three of its properties, the overall cost is 2 million $ 200,000 and belong or belonged to his father or other relatives, were obtained with illicit resources.

Raúl González Treviño is a known businessman who operated Torreón the Telecable in Coahuila [and now] defunct La Laguna. In November 14, 2008, then-Governor Humberto Moreira named González Treviño PR representative of the State Government in San Antonio, Texas, a position that is unknown when he left.

According to The Daily Texan, the assistant Attorney Russell Leachman, included [in the] claim forfeiture of three properties, including a house is worth about a million dollars, located at 107 Mill Champions in San Antonio, Texas, which bought in June 2009 to Vicente Chaires, which in turn acquired by Roberto Casimiro González Treviño, owner of the television saltillense RCG, who, in 2007, sold the property to the company Vicap Global Investments LLC, owned by Chaires.

While [he] occupied the administrative direction of the Governor's Office, during the presidency of Moreira, Chaires created the housing Vicap Global Investments, LLC in May 2007, as [owner of] the home [at] 7272 Wurzbach Road in San Antonio, Texas. At the same address, the company Saltex Investments, LLC, owned by Roberto Casimiro González Treviño, was also located.

Chaires was also owned enterprises Procon Marketing, LLC and Transnational Construction & Real Estate Co., LLC.

Something rotten in Denmark (RCG)

30/10/2013

U.S. business and money made tracks under power "

U.S. authorities [are] investigating officers and employees of former Gov. Humberto Moreira and Roberto Casimiro González family, as part of a network that would include real estate transactions, media and drugs.

The relationship between RCG and [the] political career of former Gov. Humberto Moreira could be much narrower and darker than the Coahuila suspect, who ["]baptized]"] during the past six years local TV station "Channel Moreira".

The investigations against former government officials and local business telecommunications, which conduct U.S. justice, reveals new edges of reciprocal favoritism between Humberto Moreira and [the] management company owned by Roberto Casimiro González (RCG).

The relationship between officials of the previous administration and relatives and associates of Gonzalez Trevino in the United States, could be part of a complex network in which real estate, media and even drugs are combined. What looms for now is just the tip of the iceberg.

The San Antonio Express revealed on October 11 that the U.S. government is seeking to seize three luxury homes to the family of Raúl González Treviño, former representative of the state government in that city, where the homes are located, and brother Roberto Casimiro González. One of [the homes], valued at a million dollars, belonged to the owner of the RCG television, and his brother Raul Vicente Chaires, one of Humberto Moreira closest collaborators.

The research, led by assistant federal prosecutor Russell Leachman, follows the arrest of Raúl González Fernández, son of Raul and Roberto Casimiro's nephew, for possession of more than five kilos of cocaine and marijuana with intent to distribute. Raul Jr., 42, is in custody awaiting trial.

The three properties are, or have been owned by González, Raúl González Treviño his father, and other family or trust, the Raúl González Treviño Living Trust, according to the newspaper.

The file is added to [be] open[ed] again this year to seize property millionaire and Hector Javier Villarreal, former treasurer of Coahuila accounts, and Jorge Torres Lopez Moreira, replacement as governor in 2011.

As in those cases, the state government washed its hands. Governor Ruben Moreira said the former speaker of the state administration in Texas received no salary, but was working in "goodwill", and that the state prosecutor would raise a record.

The case confirms the links between Vicente Chaires, [your] boss and Gonzalez. The former became the overnight prosperous businessman. Prestanombres. In 2007, he created the realtor Vicap Global Investments LLC, with offices in the same building as Saltex Investments, LLC, owned by Roberto Casimiro González. That same year, Saltex (RCG) sold Vicap Global (Chaires) inquired into by the U.S. authorities property. In 2009, Chaires resold the residence to Raul Gonzalez.

Chaires also figured as the owner of the companies Procon Marketing, LLC, and Transnational Construction & Real Estate Co., LLC., Located at the same address as the company Roberto Casimiro.

Background: Gonzalez family (Mar. 2015)
Recap for David Brown, FCC

The relationship does not end there. In 2009, Chaires appears as a member of Super Media Group Coahuila, SA de CV, which, in later years, acquired several ways [entities], some of which were bought and sold to RCG.

Chaires was not the only official close to Humberto Moreira to become a telecommunications entrepreneur. Last year, Super Coahuila Media Group sold the XESJ broadcaster, Saltillo, to RCG, which appointed director Alejandro García Undersecretary of Directors [for] the past six years; Samuel Rodriguez, Humberto Moreira's political operator, also became a media entrepreneur. He is a member of Radio Grupo La Grande.

Nor is it the first time that justice lays eyes on Gonzalez. Roberto Casimiro was investigated by the Attorney General for his alleged links with drug trafficker Juan Chapa Garza, who did business in Coahuila under the alias of Jose Luis Garcia Treviño.

Garza sold to RCG the Limelight lounge, which today lies in ruins. In 1994, the army stopped the drug trafficker, who had escaped from a prison in San Antonio, Texas, before boarding in La Paz, Baja California, a jet owned by Roberto Casimiro, which was seized and then recovered.

In November 14, 2008, [then] Governor Humberto Moreira appointed Raúl González Treviño "Public Relations Representative of the State Government of Coahuila" in San Antonio, Texas. His "achievements" as a partner of the government are unknown. it is also unclear when he left office, or if they stopped his duties. Governor Ruben Moreira said Raul Gonzalez worked "pro bono", [unpaid], but no further explanation or information was ever given on the matter.

I have asked if the employment of Raúl González Treviño, who received no government salary, was honorary. So [for] someone who was "honorary", representing a "state of good will", when did he leave? "He has not received salary of this administration. It's not official, he replied.

"What I have [of the case] I've seen it in the press, and I think, if anything, they would have to reflect," he said. "From all this ha[s] been opened (minutes), as already [been] said, The Attorney's view [was] to give it to the proper authorities."

In its editorial of October 16, the newspaper Vanguardia stated: [A]'fee' is not the same as "honorary,"

According to the official version of the Government of Coahuila, "Suspicion falls on today's 'businessman", Raúl González Treviño, and his family's alleged links with illegal business (...), which cannot be considered sufficient reason for such facts to shed some stain on the state administration".

What is the reason? The employer, González Treviño, although he was a 'representative' of the Government of Coahuila in the neighboring state of Texas, performed such work on an honorary basis, i.e., without asking a salary for the 'services' rendered to the State. The explanation sounds logical at first glance, but the truth is that it does not withstand the most basic analysis.

Why? Among other reasons, because the problem is not the ['fee-for-office'], but something much more important: in honor of who plays [a] representati[ve] of a government.

In this sense, it is an act of ingenuity that a government 'hired' well-meaning [person] without pay - as its representative to a foreign government - a person whose reputation may be compromised to such a degree. Perhaps no one in the previous state administration responsible for checking [into] the background and behavior of th[at] state representation [which] was granted did not have a minimum set of requirements to be met, for someone to access the status of 'ambassador' of Coahuila?

The truth is that the only ones who can boast achievements as "Ambassador Coahuila" in Texas are [the] personal, family and friends [who] benefit; these "successes" [who] have been stained by his son's arrest for drug possession. and attempts by the U.S. government incautarle properties. "

While Humberto Moreira leads a life of luxury in Spain, his closest collaborators and friends are still in the eye of the hurricane. Days after the San Antonio Express News revealed that the U.S. investigating former Acting Governor Jorge Torres Lopez [for] diversion of resources, the newspaper uncovered the investigation against Raúl González, whom Moreira appointed representative of his government in the U.S.

U.S. federal authorities seek to secure three buildings [of] Gonzalez Treviño in that country, which together are valued at $ 2.2 million. Among them, a mansion of a million dollars, located at 107 Mill Champions in the Champions Ridge subdivision that Roberto Casimiro González (RCG) sold to his brother, Raul.

In 2007, the property was sold by the assistant, Raul Moreira González, Vicente Chaires, who that year had an "unexplained" increase in their wealth. In June 2009, Chaires resold residence to Raul Gonzalez. The United States also seeks to seize a house for $650,000 located at 102 Stone Hill Drive, near the Club at Sonterra, and another residence worth $550,000 in Bowood Court 5, gated Oakwell Farms.

The San Antonio Express reported that demand for forfeiture was ordered once Raúl González Fernández, son of González Treviño, was arrested on a charge promoted since September for conspiring to distribute more than five kilos of cocaine and marijuana.

Besides being [a] representative of the Mexican government and real estate developer in Texas, Raúl González Treviño, [he] operated television station RGT.

In 2004, [Gonzalez Trevino] was involved in a conflict of interest between Megacable Cable Group and Tele La Laguna, allies since 2001. Raúl González Treviño, president of the board of the company Cable Operator of the Shire (COCSA), sued for the crime of administration Megacable Group fraudulently represented by Yamuni Enrique Robles, CEO.

With the support of the public prosecutor and the State Attorney's Office, headed by Oscar Calderon, [who] ignored society and managed to obtain possession of the assets of COCSA. "The only thing missing from Raúl González was the use of white guards" recalls Marco A. Mares in a note entitled "Chiquihuitazo cablero in Torreon", published on the website of Radio Formula.

Background: Gonzalez family (Mar. 2015)
Recap for David Brown, FCC

Yamuni was said to [have] plundered. González even credited his ownership, much less provided evidence of the alleged mismanagement, so who accused him of theft and robbery? Megacable won the case.

RCG's monopoly ended with the sale of cable television system to Televisa and the arrival of more resources to Saltillo. However, money is not hidden. Free channel (7) and reactivated broadcasters joined a network of pay TV. Last year he began construction of a swanky building on the road to Monterrey.

Roberto González's fortune began to raise suspicions since Chapa Garza drug trafficker was captured by the PGR on a plane RCG in 1994 in La Paz, Baja California.
The acronym (RCG) of the television appears in countless criminal investigations.

• One of the latest lawsuits against Network was presented by Information and Entertainment, then owned by Alejandro Gutierrez, for illegally occupying posts CFE [that] corresponded to the applicant) for wiring installation.

• The partial information management gubernatorial elections of 2005, which won Humberto Moreira, RCG earned a penalty in the Interior Ministry.

• One of its star entertainers, Marcos Martínez Soriano, was sued for moral damages by former Gov. Rogelio Montemayor, who won the trial.

• RCG also appears in the embezzlement investigation that follows the former state official Vicente Chaires Yanez, who, in November 2007, bought Roberto Casimiro González property in San Antonio. PRI spokesmen claim Chaires could not face this acquisition debt, and the property [was] returned months later, according to the newspaper El Norte.

• In 2009, Roberto Carlos González Fernández, son of Robert Casimiro González Treviño, was arrested for allegedly stealing and selling a plane [from his] uncle Rolando González Treviño.

• That same year, Maria de las Mercedes Aguilera Roman, ex-wife of Roberto Casimiro, accused her ex-husband in a public-letter [of stripping] it [RCG] of its assets, manipulating the authorities, and cheating PGR, thus amassing a fortune, (in the "evil" view), and betraying the trafficker Chapa Garza, among other allegations.

• The most recent lawsuit Roberto Casimiro is with his brother Rolando, for an inheritance.

In 2009, at the height of the tenure of then-Governor Humberto Moreira, Vicente Chaires became a media entrepreneur. That same year, Super Group shareholders in Coahuila media was made. Data from the Federal Telecommunications Commission (Cofetel) show that over the next two years, Super Media acquired the concessions XESJ-AM, broadcasting from Saltillo, and XHRE-FM and XHSLFM of Piedras Negras. In addition, he joined the Good Ke station, 100.7 FM, Ciudad Acuña, which was purchased from Roberto Casimiro González (RCG).

The consortium also was awarded Channel 22 TV, XHPNW of Piedras Negras, which would then be sold to RCG, owned by Roberto Casimiro González. In 2012, he purchased the RCG XESJ. Its director is another former government official, of Humberto Moreira: Alejandro Garcia, Assistant Secretary of Finance in the previous administration. Chaires and Garcia are not the only friends of "the Prof" [in that contorlan. [consortium].

In January this year, former leader of the PRI CDE, Samuel Rodriguez, another of Humberto Moreira political operat[atives], launched a new radio project: La Grande Radiofónico Group. The group made headlines on 30 April, when new of the disappearance of his manager and driver, Gerardo Padilla Blanquet, was announced.

A week later, the investigation revealed that Padilla attended several banking institutions from which he retired 1.3 million pesos in cash, so that the line of kidnapping was dropped.

Who said that Humberto Moreira had coahuilenses as representative in San Antonio, Texas? The "moralist", Raúl González Treviño, whose son awaits sentenc[ing] in the U.S.for drug possession for purposes of distribution, according to authorities in that country. How much [has it] cost the state [for] an ambassador [with] the background of TMN? That "fee" has not been reassuring, as there are those who not only lend their services for free, but pay [to] [be] in the government. In its new edition, "Area 4" addresses the issue.

Moral lessons. A safety net, *prestanombre*s and influence peddling around the former governor of Coahuila, Humberto Moreira, a public figure who, until recently, added [on] the [video] screen, RCG: Raúl González Treviño.

The [video] segment, 'Reflections', [feature Raul's] brother, Roberto Casimiro Gonzalez, whose acronym names the station, and can be seen locally through Youtube. González Treviño's philosophy [is expressed] in "capsules" [which include] concepts such as peace, wisdom, joy, success and prosperity.

Exactly, [this] is the source of their 'prosperity' that the U.S. government investigates. In the first action, looking incautarle luxury three residences in San Antonio, Texas, where he [Raul] served as a representative of the government of Humberto Moreira.

His son, Raúl González Fernández, was arrested for conspiring to distribute five kilos of cocaine and marijuana in the United States. The San Antonio Express reported that Assistant U.S. Attorney Russell Leachman considers houses "[which] are, or have been owned by González, Raúl González Treviño his father, and other family or trust [as part of] the Raúl González Treviño Living Trust.

The value of homes is around $2.2 million. One of them, listed at [one] million dollars, belonged to Vicente Chaires, closest to Humberto Moreira, who is under investigation as a partner [in] embezzlement.

Watch and listen to Raúl González Treviño [who] talks about success and justice - which cause[] laughter, especially when he mentions God, and quotes characters like Donaldo Colosio and Gandhi, among others.

In one of his reflections of the 'Prosperity' series, Roberto mentions the 'instant rich' who bec[o]me millionaires quickly and effortlessly, which, he says, "derives almost always '[from] wells that can not be filled'. And, in the height of cynicism, criticism of ostentation [for those] who buy cars and luxury residences.

"What is essential[ly] invisible to the eye", Gonzalez says, recalling the famous reflection of 'The Little Prince', in the book [by] Antoine de Saint-Exupéry. In his case, which was "essentially invisible to the eyes" of Coahuila and the Mexican justice system, but not [in] the view of the United States.

The [Mexican] Government is concerned that [the] U.S. spy[s] on some of its figures. So [how] serious are your sins?

Mexicans, however, [a]re outraged that American justice is to investigate the criminals who will never be judged here. And when they are, they are acquitted, as Florence Cassez Raul Salinas de Gortari and Rafael Caro Quintero, for whom the DEA offers 5 million.

What a shame.

Texas radio's MBM Revolution buys again

By RBR-TVBR on May, 9 2012 with Comments 0

image: http://rbr.com/wp-content/uploads/Sold3-225x180.jpg

Roberto Gonzalez's MBM Revolution didn't have any radio stations until it started buying them up last summer – now it is amassing an impressive collection of stations along the Rio Grande River, including six in McAllen-Brownsville with a little south-of-the-border spice.
The stations are coming from the bankrupt Border Media stable, under the care and feeding of W. Lawrence Patrick and the Border Media Business Trust.
The official licensee for the cluster will be MBM Texas Valley LLC. Joining Gonzalez on the company's management roster is Carlos Rodriguez is on board as CEO.
The price is $2.5M cash, with a full 40%, or $1M, going into escrow.
The stations included in the cluster are less than top-notch; only the AMs are able to cover both of the cities listed in the market's name.
The stations include:
* KBUC-FM Raymondville TX, a Class C2 on 102.1 MHz with 18 kW @ 758'. It covers turf to the north of the market, with a 60 dBu contour that fails to hit either city.
* KESO-FM South Padre Island TX, a Class C2 on 92.7 MHz with 38 kW @ 466'. It services the Brownsville, or eastern, side of the market.
* KZSP-FM South Padre Island TX, a Class A on 95.3 MHz with 2.9 kW @ 420'. It covers the area just east of Brownsville, not quite throwing its 60 dBu over the city.
* KJAV-FM Alamo TX, a Class A with 6 kW @ 324'. It covers the western McAllen portion of the market.
* KURV-AM Edinburg TX, a Class B on 710 kHz with 1 kW-D, 910 W-N, DA2. It just blankets both cities, and is better at night.
* KVJY-AM Pharr TX, a Class B on 840 kHz with 5 kW-D, 1 kW-N, DA2. It has the better daytime signal of the two, but fails to make it to Brownsville at night.

In addition to the US stations, MBM will be picking up advertising agreements with a quarter of stations across the border in Mexico, including XHAVO-FM, XHRR-FM, XHCAO-FM and XEGA-AM.

RBR-TVBR observation: Let's take a look at what it cost to build this cluster: The deal for the station that is now KBUC was struck 7/10/02 for $8M; the stations that are now KESO-FM and KZSP-FM were part of a 5/6/04 deal valued at $6.6M; the station that is now KJAV-FM was sold in September 2004 for $7M. The AMs were sold with other AMs, so a direct comparison is not available, but a total of six AMs moved in two deals for a total of $11.25M.

The total for the FMs alone is $21.6M – that, compared to the $2.5M the cluster is fetching today, is bleak enough to not even bother making it worse by estimating a previous purchase price for the two AMs involved in the deal.

Five stations in two Texas towns sold

By RBR-TVBR on Jun, 29 2011

Roberto Gonzalez has assigned the right to buy a five-station starter radio group to, well, himself – but the seller remains Rhattigan Broadcasting (Texas) L.P. Gonzalez will wind up with ownership of two stations in Uvalde and three in Eagle Pass.

Gonzalez was originally going to buy the stations under licensee name Regency Entertainment and Promotions LLC. Instead, he will buy them under one corporate name – MB Revolution LLC, and two licensee names – MBM Radio Eagle Pass and MBM Radio Uvalde LLC.

Both towns are beyond the reach of Arbitron. Uvalde is west of San Antonio. MB will be picking up KVOU AM-FM and KUVA-FM there. Eagle Pass is even further to the west and is just across the Rio Grande from Mexico. The stations there are KEPS-AM and KINL-FM. MB noted that the two towns are 55 miles apart as the crow flies, and hence constitute separate markets.

The price is $2.1M cash.

Here are the facilities for the Uvalde stations:

* KVOU-AM is a Class C on 1400 kHz with 1 kW-U, ND
* KVOU-FM is a Class C3 on 104.9 MHz with 25 kW @ 272'
* KUVA-FM is a Class A on 102.3 MHz with 4 kW @ 217'

And the Eagle Pass stations set up like this:

* KEPS-AM is a Class D on 1270 kHz with 890 W-D, 32 W-N, ND
* KINL-FM is a Class C3 on 92.7 MHz with 20 kW @ 184'
