FCC Form 315
Section IV, Question 8
Multiple Ownership Compliance

Request For Temporary Duopoly Waivers To Provide Brief, Fixed Period To Achieve Rule Compliance In Four Of Liberty's 14 Markets.

This Form 315 application and a contemporaneously-filed one seek FCC consent to the transfer of control of The Liberty Corporation (“Liberty”) (including licensee subsidiaries LibCo, Inc. and CivCo, Inc.) from the existing shareholders of Liberty to Transferee Raycom Media, Inc. (“Raycom”). Together, the Liberty subsidiaries, LibCo, Inc. and CivCo, Inc., are the licensees of 15 television stations operating in 14 different television markets. As reflected in Exhibit 16, Transferee Raycom, through subsidiaries, owns 33 television stations (including three satellites). Four of the 15 Liberty stations (each licensed to LibCo, Inc.) operate in markets (Toledo, Ohio; Columbia, South Carolina; Albany, Georgia; and Wilmington, North Carolina) in which Raycom already owns a station. In these four markets, fewer than eight independently owned television stations would remain following the proposed merger. Transferee Raycom seeks a six-month waiver of the duopoly rule (Section 73.3555(b)) to provide a very brief opportunity to take the steps necessary to divest one of the two same-market stations, while maintaining the separate operations of the stations in the interim.¹

In duopoly and various other multiple ownership contexts, the FCC has found the public interest well served by granting temporary waivers to make possible multi-station, multi-market transactions, allowing the acquiring party adequate time for an orderly divestiture of non-complying media interests.² While the FCC has permitted nine months or more in a number of cases to achieve rule compliance,³ Raycom is committed to achieving compliance more quickly and seeks a shorter period of only six months. Particularly in view of the size of the transaction, Raycom seeks this brief period to take all the steps necessary to effectuate successfully the merger with Liberty, while simultaneously locating and contracting with qualified buyers in four of Liberty's 14 markets.

Grant of the requested temporary waivers would accord with past FCC actions facilitating large, multi-station, multi-market transactions.⁴ Temporary waivers in these circumstances serve the public interest by allowing for orderly divestiture of stations and avoid the unnecessary devaluing of stations and restriction of potential buyers that would likely occur if transferees were forced to rapidly divest in a "fire sale" of assets in markets where the multiple ownership limits are exceeded.⁵ Thus, the FCC has found that temporary waivers are an important mechanism "to avoid any forced sale of a station assets that could unnecessarily restrict the value of the stations to be divested and could artificially limit the range of potential buyers.”⁶

In addition to the brief duration of the waiver period, the extent of diversity of voices and competition in the four markets at issue, together with Raycom’s commitment to maintain separate operations during the interim period, would mitigate even the potential for impact on the underlying goals of the duopoly rule during the brief waiver period.⁷ First, as set forth in more detail in Attachments 1-4 of this Exhibit, residents of each of the four markets enjoy substantial diversity of media voices. These markets achieve a level of media diversity similar to or greater than markets in which the FCC previously has granted temporary duopoly waivers.⁸

It is noteworthy, moreover, that the current video marketplace faces dramatically increased competition from multi-channel video programming distributors. Earlier this year, for example, the FCC found that “[t]oday, almost all consumers have the choice between over-the-air broadcast television, a cable service, and at least two DBS providers.”⁹ In the 2003-2004

television season, for example, more viewers watched nonbroadcast programming than broadcast.¹⁰ Moreover, MVPDs are now active in offering locally-oriented and locally-originated programming, including specialized state and local news and public affairs offerings that are not generally available on broadcast television.¹¹

Second, as a further safeguard against even briefly impacting media diversity in the four markets at issue here, Raycom will take the steps necessary in effectuating the merger transaction to maintain the separate management, programming and sales operations of the stations in the Toledo, Ohio; Columbia, South Carolina; Albany, Georgia and Wilmington, North Carolina markets.¹² During the brief waiver period, the staff of each of the stations in these markets will be insulated from the staff and proprietary and confidential information of the co-owned same-market station. Raycom will maintain the separate national sales representative firms of the Liberty stations. Moreover, it will continue the strong level of localism of each of the acquired Liberty stations in these markets. The FCC frequently has noted that this sort of commitment to continue independent operations provides strong additional basis for granting a temporary waiver.¹³

¹⁰ Eleventh Annual Report at 2772.

¹¹ Id. at 2845.

¹³ See Telemundo Order, 17 FCC Rcd at 6976. Accord Guy Gannett Communications, 14 FCC Rcd at 6215-16; Applications of Maltz, 13 FCC Rcd at ¶¶ 9, 13; Paxson Communications, 13 FCC Rcd 15,518, ¶ 6.

Third, Raycom firmly commits to meeting the requirements of the brief, fixed duopoly waiver period. It already has begun the process of seeking qualified buyers, including engaging a media broker, to help expedite the process. Even at this early stage, Raycom has received preliminary expressions of interest, with most intense interest thus far being in the Wilmington market and Raycom has begun working with Liberty to prepare the necessary offering materials for that market.

Fourth, expeditious approval of this transaction will serve the public interest because Raycom will move aggressively to complete the digital construction and upgrades of the Liberty stations that are not now licensed with full power facilities. With respect to its existing stations, Raycom has already brought the digital facilities to full power or is working diligently to complete digital build-out.¹⁴ Raycom will similarly work diligently to complete construction of digital facilities for the Liberty stations that are not presently providing full power digital service.

Accordingly, as shown in this Exhibit and its Attachments, the public interest will be served by granting the requested six-month temporary duopoly waivers in the Toledo, Ohio; Columbia, South Carolina; Albany, Georgia; and Wilmington, North Carolina markets. In addition to furthering the digital transition and other important Commission goals, the waivers in these four markets will make possible a multi-station transaction, and the “overall benefits of allowing time for an orderly divestiture will outweigh any temporary impact on diversity and competition from common ownership.”¹⁵

Toledo, Ohio

The Toledo, Ohio television market (the 70th ranked DMA) has seven full-service television stations, including affiliates of CBS, ABC, NBC, Fox and PBS, as well as an independent station.¹⁶ In addition, the WB Network has affiliated with a cable system.¹⁷ Due to geographic proximity, significant portions of the Toledo market also receive service from the adjacent markets of Detroit, Michigan; Fort Wayne, Indiana; Cleveland, Ohio; and Columbus, Ohio. Five of the seven full-service stations will be independently owned following the merger with Liberty and, as noted in Exhibit 18, during the short waiver period, Raycom will maintain the separate operations of its existing station WNWO-TV, Ch. 24 (NBC) and newly-acquired Liberty station WTOL(TV), Ch. 11 (CBS).

Television stations in the market face significant competition from various other sources, particularly including multi-channel video programming distributors. The Toledo DMA, which has a cable penetration rate of 69%,¹⁸ is served by 49 cable systems.¹⁹ The major systems that serve households in the DMA — those that have subscriberships of over 10,000 — have channel capacities of between 52 and 94. Several of these systems carry distant NBC and CBS stations from Detroit or Columbus which compete with Raycom and Liberty. As the FCC has recognized, moreover, cable systems offer specialized local and national programming which is widely available to consumers.²⁰ In the Toledo DMA, viewers have access to substantial local programming provided by cable operators, including specialized channels providing content of local interest. For example, Toledo's Buckeye Cablevision, a system with over 132,000 subscribers, operates the Community Channel, which airs local council meetings, political debates, and area sporting events, including high school sports, as well as two other local channels. Likewise, Adelphia Communications, in Port Clinton, carries the Ohio News Network and three other locally oriented channels.

Further diversity and competition is provided by the satellite carriers EchoStar and DIRECTV, which major programming distributors have achieved a DBS penetration rate of 17% which continues to grow.²¹ Each of these carriers offers local-into-local satellite service in the Toledo DMA.

In addition to television, cable and DBS services, there are other voices that contribute to the diversity of voices and compete for advertising revenue in the Toledo market. Eight low power television stations and over thirty radio stations are licensed to communities in the DMA.²² Furthermore, thirteen daily newspapers and 25 weekly papers are published in the market.²³

As the FCC has previously found in approving a temporary waiver in the Toledo DMA, the market would not be adversely affected by a short period of common ownership.²⁴

²⁰ See, e.g., Eleventh Annual Report at 2772, 2845.

²⁴ Applications of Maltz, 13 FCC Rcd 15,527, ¶ 20 (1998).

Given the existing presence of television voices in the market, increased diversity from multi-channel video programming distributors and other media outlets, and the substantial benefits associated with facilitating a fifteen-station transaction, the public interest would be served by a grant of a temporary waiver of the duopoly rule for the Toledo DMA.

Columbia, South Carolina

The Columbia, South Carolina television market (the 83rd ranked DMA) has eight full-service television stations, including affiliates of CBS, ABC, Fox, NBC, PBS, UPN and the WB Network.²⁵ Because of close geographic proximity, significant portions of the Columbia market also receive service from the adjacent markets of Augusta, GA; Charleston, SC; and Myrtle Beach-Florence, SC. Five of the eight full-service stations will be independently owned following the merger with Liberty and, as noted in Exhibit 18, during the short waiver period, Raycom will maintain the separate operations of its existing station WACH(TV), Ch. 57 (Fox) and newly acquired Liberty station WIS(TV), Ch. 10 (NBC).

The Columbia television stations face significant competition from various other sources, particularly including multi-channel video programming distributors. The Columbia DMA, which has a cable penetration rate of 58%,²⁶ is served by 24 cable systems.²⁷ The Time Warner system in the city of Columbia, which has more than half the subscribership of the entire DMA, has a channel capacity of 78 channels. Moreover, as the FCC has recognized, cable systems offer specialized local and national programming which is widely available to consumers.²⁸ In the Columbia DMA, Time Warner Cable carries locally oriented programming on three different channels devoted to education, city government, and a local “video marketplace.”

²⁶ See Annex 2.B.

²⁷ See Annex 2.B. Eight systems are owned by L.B. Cable; 6 by Pine Tree Cablevision; 2 by Charter Communications; and one each by Adelphia, Comcast and Time Warner.

²⁸ See, e.g., Eleventh Annual Report at 2772, 2845.

Further diversity and competition is provided by the satellite carriers EchoStar and DIRECTV, which have together achieved a DBS penetration rate of 27%.²⁹ Each of these systems offers local-into-local satellite service in the Columbia DMA.

In addition to television, cable and DBS services, there are other voices that contribute to media diversity and compete for advertising revenue in Columbia. Four low power television stations and over forty radio stations are licensed to communities in the DMA.³⁰ Further, three daily newspapers and seventeen weekly papers are published in the market.³¹

The Columbia market, thus, enjoys substantial diversity and competition, including more independently owned television voices than in the Toledo DMA, in which the FCC previously granted a temporary duopoly waiver under similar circumstances.³² Moreover, given the existing television voices in the market, increased diversity provided by multi-channel video programming distributors and other media outlets, and the substantial benefits associated with facilitating a fifteen-station transaction, the public interest would be served by a grant of a temporary waiver of the duopoly rule for the Columbia DMA.

²⁹ Nielsen Alternative Delivery Systems Estimate, 3d Qtr. (2005).

³⁰ See Annex 2.C.

³¹ See Annex 2.D.

³² Applications of Maltz, 13 FCC Rcd 15,527, ¶ 20 (1998). The Columbia DMA also contains more independently owned voices than several other markets in which the FCC has previously granted a six month waiver. See, e.g., AFLAC Broadcasting Group, 12 FCC Rcd 3907 (1997).

Wilmington, North Carolina

The Wilmington, North Carolina television market (the 140th ranked DMA) has four independently owned full-service television stations affiliated with NBC, Fox, ABC and PBS.³³ In addition, the local CBS affiliate, which has a secondary affiliation with UPN, is a low-power television station which operates as a satellite of the Raleigh CBS affiliate, but also provides programming local to Wilmington. The WB Network, consistent with its practice in 100+ markets, has affiliated with a cable system.³⁴ Because of close geographic proximity, significant portions of the market also receive service from the adjacent Myrtle Beach-Florence DMA, including service from the Florence ABC affiliate. Two of the four full-service stations, in addition to the low-power CBS affiliate, will be independently owned following the merger and, as noted in Exhibit 18, during the short waiver period, Raycom will maintain the separate operations of its existing station WECT(TV), Ch. 6 (NBC) and newly acquired Liberty station WWAY(TV), Ch. 3 (ABC).

Television stations in the Wilmington DMA face significant competition from various other sources, particularly including multi-channel video programming distributors. The Wilmington market, which has a cable penetration rate of 72%,³⁵ is served by 13 cable systems, including three Time Warner systems, three Charter Communications systems, and four owned by Tele-Media. The channel capacities for these systems range from between 36 and 72 channels. As the FCC has recognized, cable systems offer specialized local and national programming which is widely available to consumers.³⁶ Such programming is amply available to cable subscribers in the Wilmington DMA. For instance, Time Warner Cable in Wilmington offers five local channels, including the Learning Network, two government channels, and a channel known as “Cape Fear Now” that provides original local community-oriented programming and showcases local businesses.

Further diversity and competition is provided by DIRECTV, which has, with its competitor EchoStar, achieved a DBS penetration rate of 21% in Wilmington, and which offers local-into-local service in the DMA.³⁷

In addition to television, cable and DBS services, there are other voices that contribute to media diversity in Wilmington and compete for advertising revenue. Three low power television stations, including a CBS/UPN affiliate, and fifteen radio stations are licensed to communities in the DMA.³⁸ Further, twelve daily or weekly newspapers are published in the market.³⁹

Granting a temporary waiver in the Wilmington DMA would be consistent with past FCC precedent, in which the FCC found to be important the fact that several other stations licensed outside of the DMA were significantly viewed within the market under consideration.⁴⁰ Given the existing television voices in the market, increased diversity provided by multi-channel

⁴⁰ AFLAC Broadcasting Group, 12 FCC Rcd 3907, 3915 ¶ 15 (1997). The Wilmington DMA also has more voices than the DMA at issue in AFLAC, in which the FCC, with substantial reliance on the fact that there were out-of-market stations significantly viewed within the DMA, granted a six-month waiver when the television stations for which the waiver was granted were the only two licensed in the DMA. Id.

video programming distributors and other media outlets, and the substantial benefits associated with facilitating a fifteen-station transaction, the public interest would be served by a grant of a temporary waiver of the duopoly rule for the Wilmington DMA.

Albany, Georgia

The Albany, Georgia television market (the 147th ranked DMA) has six full-service television stations, including affiliates of NBC, Fox, UPN and PBS.⁴¹ Because of close geographic proximity, significant portions of the market also receive service from surrounding markets of Tallahassee-Thomasville, Florida; Columbus, Georgia; Dothan, Alabama; and others. In addition, the WB Network, consistent with its practice in 100+ markets, affiliates with a cable system.⁴² Three of the six full-service stations will be independently owned following the merger and, as noted in Exhibit 18, during the short waiver period, Raycom will maintain the separate operations of its existing station, WFXL(TV), Ch. 31 (Fox), and its newly acquired Liberty station, WALB(TV), Ch. 10 (NBC).

The Albany television stations face significant competition from various other sources, particularly including multi-channel video programming distributors. The Albany DMA, which has a cable penetration rate of 67%,⁴³ is served by 24 cable systems.⁴⁴ The Mediacom system serving the city of Albany has a capacity for 71 channels. As the FCC has recognized, cable systems offer specialized local and national programming which is widely available to consumers.⁴⁵ In addition to its carriage of local broadcast stations, Mediacom provides its customers with a significant amount of specialized local programming, including a community channel, a government channel, and an educational channel.

⁴² The WB Network affiliates in Albany with the Mediacom system.

⁴³ See Annex 4.B.

⁴⁴ See Annex 4.B. Eleven of the Systems are owned by Mediacom, LLC, and 4 by L.B. Cable, LLC.

Further diversity and competition is provided by EchoStar, a satellite carrier which has, with its competitor DIRECTV, achieved a DBS penetration rate of 25% in Albany.⁴⁶ EchoStar provides Albany with local-into-local DBS service. In addition to carrying Albany broadcast stations, EchoStar delivers out-of-market network affiliates to customers in the Albany DMA.

In addition to television, cable and DBS services, there are other voices that contribute to media diversity in Albany and compete for advertising revenue. Eight low power television stations and over twenty radio stations are licensed to communities in the DMA.⁴⁷ Further, four daily newspapers and sixteen weekly papers are published in the market.⁴⁸

Though Raycom will be divesting one of the stations within the brief waiver period, it is committed to moving forward expeditiously the construction of the digital facilities of Liberty's WALB. The station presently operates only at lower power at an alternate site pursuant to special temporary authority and, as a small market station, is not subject to more complete build out requirements until mid-2006. During the limited time waiver period, Raycom plans to work to expand the digital capabilities of WALB promptly following the merger, thus advancing the digital television transition.

Granting a temporary waiver in the Albany DMA would be consistent with past FCC precedent, in which the FCC found to be important the fact that several other stations

licensed outside of the DMA were significantly viewed within the market under consideration.⁴⁹ Given the existing television voices in the market, increased diversity provided by multi-channel video programming distributors and other media outlets, and the substantial benefits associated with facilitating a fifteen-station transaction, the public interest would be served by a grant of a temporary waiver of the duopoly rule for the Albany DMA.

⁴⁹ AFLAC Broadcasting Group, 12 FCC Rcd 3907, 3915 ¶ 15 (1997). The Wilmington DMA also has more voices than the DMA at issue in AFLAC, in which the FCC, with substantial reliance on the fact that there were out-of-market stations significantly viewed within the DMA, granted a six month waiver when the television stations for which the waiver was granted were the only two licensed in the DMA. Id.
