Total times aired at regularly scheduled time 4

Length of Program 30 mins

Age of Target Child Audience from 13 years to 16 years

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Each week, Spangler conducts a series of eye popping experiments using only accessible items. Trashcan smoke shooters, fizzy soda eruptions and ping pong ball cannons are all fair game in this DIY science show that's fun for the whole family. Whether in a garage, a park or even the local hardware store, Spangler uncovers the FUNdamentals of science that are hiding in plain sight. No two experiments will be the same, and with the help of slow-mo cameras, viewers don't miss a millisecond of the action, But each mind-boggling experiment is only the beginning, Xploration DIY SCI goes beyond the booms, bangs, fizzes and flickers to explain to kids how the scientific lessons from each experiment are also being used out in the real world by actual scientists. After seeing how two interlaced phone books can tow your car, Spangler will reveal how this same property keeps us safe by helping trains brake when they need to slow down. This how to, magazine format mash up comes together in a dazzling visual display that is as informative as it is entertaining.

Sometimes the best way to move science forward is to go back to basics. In this unique magazine format, we uncover how man made labs are copying the way nature works to create new technology and cutting edge products. In every episode of Nature Knows Best, we delve into a fascinating topic and reveal how different animals, plants, and living organisms are helping scientists achieve amazing new feats. From how plant burrs spawned the idea for Velcro, to how gecko feet are helping our future military walk up walls, every segment is chock full of incredible visual stories that both animals lovers and techies will find fascinating. Don't miss a minute of the action as we reveal the unexpected ways scientists of past, present and future look to nature to answer the world's most perplexing questions and curious challenges on Xploration Nature Knows Best. If imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, consider nature the mother of all scientists.
