This 30 minute show is an award-winning program that educates young people about ecology, wildlife, and science as well as how it all relates to them. It was created by George A. Stover III, a professional TV producer, videographer, and scuba diver. While filming underwater documentaries all over the world, he noticed the oceans beginning to decline, and decided to use his profession and influence to educate people about this alarming trend. He realized that to make a lasting change, he had to reach the kids and teens of the world to make a lasting change, he had to reach the kids and teens of the world.
