Next up, the founder of The Cowboys of Color rodeo spoke about the upcoming Texas Black Invitation Rodeo on Juneteenth benefiting the African American Museum in Dallas. This celebration of history and education is a special annual event that people continue to take their families to learn more and celebrate in the culture of black cowboys. Following these two, the owner of Larry North Fitness shared some changes that everyone can make to get healthy for the summer and tips on staying healthy. Then the Public Relations and Special Events Coordinator for Nappiology, Inc. and a Premier Natural Hair Stylist joined the set to have an open discussion about natural hair and the upcoming Curly Fest 2019. This is especially important for those who wish to stop using chemicals on their hair and those with children they are learning to care for natural hair properly. The show ends with the Executive Chef and Owner of Peace, Love and Eat Smoothie Bar discussing the motivations behind starting the restaurant and the healthy offerings at their restaurant and a live tasting for all on set. Episode 669 The episode started off with a focus on drugs with a conversation between the founder of Drop the Drugs and the Grand Prairie Chief of Police about the mission of the Drop the Drugs campaign and how to dispose of drugs safely. Next up the Executive Director, as well as the Program Director of Reading Partners of North Texas have a conversation about the value of reading over the summer considering the knowledge that kids lose during the summer. They also announced their Booked for Summer campaign. The Floor Manager and Lead Strength Coach of the REACT Adaptive Fitness and Recovery Center and REACH Ambassador discussed the recovery center's benefits for those with debilitating injuries and specifically how it benefitted the guest ambassador in her personal recover. The backend of the show welcomed the founder of Black Menswear to discuss the mission and how they are serving the black community by setting positive images for African American men with appropriately dapper and formal attire. They shared stories of their flash mob of men of color in their wears. The show ends with a conversation with the current host of the Gentleman Jack Real to Reel local screening tour and the late director John Singleton's impact on young black filmmakers. They further discuss how young filmmakers can get involved in the screening tour.
