Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	"Origins" is a high energy, high interest program about the origins of objects people see and use daily, along with inventions that change the world. The average edit of less than 3 seconds matches the target viewer's snappy visual expectations. The soundtrack is effective and pervasive and the narration self-assured with the right level of imbued excitement. The subject matter is engaging with a solid, fact-based spine. It complements nicely the dominant educational strategy for media to provoking thought and exploration without heavy reliance on questions with a right or wrong answer. The exceptional approach to content provides factual awe that leads to wonder, thinking, and conclusions by viewers. This is the goal of both social studies and science pedagogy into which "Origins" aligns. This airs on 46.1.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	"Animal Atlas" continues its long series life by using technology to consistently improve the essential visual component of the episodes. The high definition video of the arresting animals and animal elements is well used to engage viewers and lead them through a sequence of valued and meaningful insights. One of the series strengths continues to be that it does not just present a list of animal facts but links a wide variety of information into sequences that make knowledge of the animal kingdom both simpler and easier to remember. The interstitial quizzes have become not just summaries of previous information but a lead-in to the next organized sequence of information. The tone of credited narrator Eric Schwartz is perfect for the target group of 13-16 year-olds. It is non-professorial and faux flip-again, ideal for the target mindset of selfconfident adolescence. Yet the vocabulary is rich. It presumes the understanding of the words like "behemoth" and "adaptation" but gives enough context to add that word to young viewers' vocabulary without getting pedantic. Great information in a rich visual context. Airs on ch 46.5 Decades TV . (This program is regularly scheduled and started when this channel switched over on June 1, 2018)

Origination	Network
Days/Times Program Regularly Scheduled	Sat/11:00am
Total times aired at regularly scheduled time	13
Length of Program	30 mins
Age of Target Child Audience from	13 years to 16 years
Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	"Animal Atlas" continues its long series life by using technology to consistently improve the essential visual component of the episodes. The high definition video of the arresting animals and animal elements is well used to engage viewers and lead them through a sequence of valued and meaningful insights. One of the series strengths continues to be that it does not just present a list of animal facts but links a wide variety of information into sequences that make knowledge of the animal kingdom both simpler and easier to remember. The interstitial quizzes have become not just summaries of previous information but a lead-in to the next organized sequence of information. The tone of credited narrator Eric Schwartz is perfect for the target group of 13-16 year-olds. It is non-professorial and faux flip-again, ideal for the target mindset of selfconfident adolescence. Yet the vocabulary is rich. It presumes the understanding of the words like "behemoth" and "adaptation" but gives enough context to add that word to young viewers' vocabulary without getting pedantic. Great information in a rich visual context. Airs on ch 46.5 Decades TV .
