Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Star Street is a cartoon for children about 6 to 8 years old and focuses on the Star Kids, a number of small pink aliens with appearance and personalities based on the signs of the zodiac. The show takes place on their home planet, a small idyllic star-shaped planetoid. The main antagonists were the green blobs, a race of green cowardly aliens living on a neighboring garbage planet, who were led by constantly hungry Momo, a large, pink alien warlord. There are two stories in each episode with original songs in English. In each story, the Star Kids go on adventures and solve problems and by the end of the program have learned something new about life, love, friendship, and cooperation to other races. Star Street educates children by promoting friendship, tolerance and creativity.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.		Kimba was born on a boat, where Eliza teaches him his father's ideals. Kimba lands far from his ancestral home and is found and cared for by some people. He learns the advantages of human culture, and decides that when he returns to his wild home he will bring culture to the jungle and stand for peace like his father. The show follows Kimba's life after he returns to the wild, still a young cub, and how he learns and grows in the next year. Kimba soon learns that the only communication and mutual understanding between animals and humans will bring true peace. The program educates children about family and environmental values, as well as teaches vital lessons relating to growing up, such as responsibility and courage.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Spellman is a teenager with a big heart and a huge secret: she is half mortal and half witch. The only people who know her secret are her aunts Hilda and Zelda, who are also witches, her Uncle Quigley, her best friend Chloe and her malicious cat Salem (a sorcerer condemned to live in the body of a cat by the Council of Witches). Despite the precautions that Uncle Quigley has given Sabrina about not using magic to solve her problems, she ends up confronting problems throughout the show with use of her magic and friends. Sabrina educates children by teaching important character traits children will need in life, such as, courage, loyalty, friendship, responsibility and obedience.
