Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	The show uses an entertaining on-the-street format to test how well young people know the information contained in their own national curriculum. Then, On the Spot explains the answer to each question. The pedagogical approach of testing first and explaining the answer second has been shown to enhance retention and understanding. On the Spot challenges viewers to recall middle and high school knowledge about history, science, math, English, second languages, health, geography, art, music, and technology, and then teaches them the answer. Among a field of narrowly-focused E/I programs, On the Spot stands out as most the scholastically diverse and enriching educational program on the market.

Include any other comments or information you want the Commission to consider in evaluating your compliance with the Children's Television Act (or use this space for supplemental explanations). This may include information on any other noncore educational and informational programming that you aired this quarter or plan to air during the next quarter, or any existing or proposed non-broadcast efforts that will enhance the educational and informational value of such programming to children. See 47 C.F.R. Section 73.671, NOTES 2 and 3.	On September 17th, 2011 both the CBS network and The CW network changed their lineup for children's programming. This change is reflected in the form above. In addition to the 3.2 hours of children's core programming aired during the 3rd quarter of 2011, both KNOE-TV & Monroe's CW aired and continue to air numerous psa's each day aimed at children 16 years and younger regarding issues such as health and safety for kids, educational motivation and other topics for children including such issues as education, being good citizens, drug abuse prevention, etc.
