Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Description: Aqua Kids is a children's television program which seeks to educate young people about the importance of protecting marine environments and the animals that live there. Aqua Kids is broadcast on 128 television stations across the United States and reaches approximately 80% of the viewing markets. The show targets teen children, age thirteen and up. Since it's start in 2000, the show has earned two Emmys and seven Telly Awards. Molly McKinney, who has been a cast member since the show's pilot, has served as its host for the past 2 years[1]. The show is produced by George Stover. Phil Moore, a host of Nick Arcade, previously hosted the show. Aqua Kids motivates young people to take an active role in preserving aquatic environments and wildlife, by showing how other kids just like them can do the same. Whether it's saving sea turtles or participating in a beach cleanup, the Aqua Kids demonstrate the real and lasting contribution children can make in protecting the future of their community and the world. Aqua Kids is an award-winning children's program dedicated to educating young people about the importance of protecting marine environments and the animals that live there.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	DESCRIPTION: M@dAbout, in its 2nd season, is a weekly, half-hour sketch-comedy/variety show aimed at educating and entertaining kids ages 13 to 16. A true E/I series, episodes use a creative mixture of humor, improv, animation, and viewer-generated video. Think Saturday Night Live meets The Electric Company. M@dAbout conveys important messages about Life Skills such as personal finance, health & nutrition, fitness, conservation and decision-making in a fun and entertaining way. Each TV episode relies on a small company of skilled comedic actors to explore significant topics within a subject area. It incorporates comic monologues, sketch and improv comedy, eye-catching animation, music videos, humorous "man on the street" interviews, and viewer-created questions about life's issues. PROMOTION: The M@dAbout Series on TV will be cross-promoted via a syndicated website and a live, in-school touring theatre production to 1,000 schools around the country. M@dAbout stations will be promoted at the local schools through the live touring show when the show travels to that market. Station logo will appear on student workbooks, teacher guides and hall posters. Window included in show for local billboards. A selection of on-air promos will be available via satellite.

Program Title	Sports Stars of Tomorrow
Origination	Syndicated
Days/Times Program Regularly Scheduled	Saturday 10:30 am
Total times aired at regularly scheduled time	13
Length of Program	30 mins

Age of Target Child Audience from	10 years to 16 years
Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Sports Stars of Tomorrow (abbreviated SST) is a United States nationally-syndicated sports television show about high school and college athletics. The show, which is hosted by legendary broadcaster Pat Summerall, takes its viewers across the country in search of the brightest young stars in sports.[1] Sports Stars of Tomorrow is the only high-school sports program in national syndication.[2] The show began in 2005 and provides in-depth feature stories about the top prep athletes in the United States. The goal of the program is to get an "off the field" look at the athletes, so they are frequently shown doing things like playing golf, strumming guitars, and studying. It is produced by GameDay Productions, a private television production company based in Fort Worth, Texas. When the show began in the fall of 2005 it reached out to just 20 percent of the country. Currently, it is airing in nearly 90 percent of all homes nationwide. Pat Summerall began his broadcasting career in 1962 after playing ten seasons in the NFL. He worked for CBS until 1994, when Summerall joined Fox as the network's lead play-by-play voice for NFL football. In 1999, Summerall was inducted into the American Sportscasters Association Hall of Fame. He has also been given the Pro Football Hall of Fame's Pete Rozelle Radio-Television Award as well as the Lifetime Achievement Award for Sports from the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. Jerome Butler has been the producer of Sports Stars of Tomorrow since it began in 2005.
