Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Virus Attack is a series that depicts pollution as DNA infected by viruses, which are infecting a city with the sole purpose of destroying it. The three main characters, David, Alice and George, represent the anti-viruses. His father, Professor Amaldi, has devoted his life to finding a solution to the evil gene of wickedness. It is an interesting metaphor for pollution. The series shows elements of courage, friendship, and problem solving. Although the concept is far-fetched, it brings enough science concepts to make it plausible. This would be an excellent venue to discuss the issues of pollution in our modern world. Concepts of what is causing pollution and how students can help to solve some of these problems are issues young people face today. They very often feel powerless and this show's characters have them great role models to try and problem solve the issues of pollution.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Monsters and Pirates seeks to educate this age group about developmentally relevant psychological themes relating to individual competence by providing role models of children their age mastering unusual, new and challenging situations. Eight to twelve year old children are involved with developing a sense of personal competence and are beginning to observe and think logically about the skills they are developing. The characters in Monsters and Pirates are also experiencing their first tastes of using their skills independently, as they sail off on a test adventure to obtain their diplomas from the Blackburn Academy for Pirates. They are forced to be innovative as they manage issues of competition and authority, and they solve these problems in ways to which children can relate. They do things like summoning jellyfish to help slow down their competition or joining as a team to help each other over a widening abyss. Each character in the episodes has a unique talent to contribute to the venture, and respect is shown for individuality of both boys and girls of many types, not to mention some very interesting animals. Solutions to problems in the episodes are found by using resources in novel ways. This encourages the eight to twelve year old child to think creatively about his or her own potential and situation.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Lassie was a popular long-running U.S. television series about a collie dog and her various owners. Over her more than fifty years history, Lassie stories have moved across books, film, television, comic books, and other forms of popular culture. The American Dog Museum credits her with increasing the popularity of Collies. British writer Eric Knight created Lassie for a Saturday Evening Post short story in 1938, a story released in book form as Lassie Come Home in 1940. Knight set the story in his native Yorkshire and focuses it around the concerns of a family struggling to survive as a unit during the depression.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	Eco Company provides CORE programming in the area of the environment and preservation of the earth's resources. Eco Company explores all aspects of being "green" and understanding how our actions impact the world. The E-Co team find out about global warming by asking questions to discover the truths and myths of the global warming issue. They learn about alternative energies by visiting wind farms and solar installations and discovering new energy technologies currently under development. They learn more about recycling, conservation and organics. The E-Team profiles teens and school organizations who have taken it upon themselves to make a difference, young entrepreneurs who are taking their passion for green to develop ideas, and new products for a sustainable future. Most importantly, each story and each feature is reported by teens and told from their perspective. Additionally each week the show will provide practical tips that teens, and people of all ages can use in their daily lives. Eco Company uses the technique of peer reporting. The diverse and dynamic cast of teens who make up Eco Company combine their natural curiosity with their enthusiasm to report the informational stories to teens and their families. Each episode employs Eco Company "members" or hosts who conduct interviews of peers and adults, and experience first hand the demonstration and explanation of the topic.
