Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	The Doodlebops is a live action show designed to teach life lessons to children under elementary school age, and is intended to promote social and academic readiness. The main characters are the three members of the Doodlebops musical band, their jazzy neighbor MAZZ and their driver Bus Driver Bob. Each episode explores social issues, such as the importance of persistence or the value of openness to new things. The program emphasizes an appreciation of music, and integrates the social lessons into original songs that are repeated through the episodes. This program is specifically designed to further the educational and informational needs of children, has educating and informing children as a significant purpose, and otherwise meets the definition of Core Programming as specified in the Commission's rules. Inspired by the beloved works of best-selling children's author Richard Scarry, Busytown Mysteries brings the popular adventures of Busytown to preschoolers with an educational, problem-solving twist. Children can follow classic characters such as Huckle, Sally and Lowly as they scour Busytown on fun-filled adventures looking for answers to life's puzzles. Each episode focuses on fostering viewers' problem solving abilities, as the characters use their skills of observation to collect facts, draw inferences from those facts, and ultimately reach conclusions. Each episode also develops vocabulary through words and concepts that are part of the episode's overall theme. This program is specifically designed to further the educational and informational needs of children, has educating and informing children as a significant purpose, and otherwise meets the definition of Core Programming as specified in the Commission's rules.

Describe the educational and informational objective of the program and how it meets the definition of Core Programming.	HORSELAND is an animated series about five girls and two boys who live in spectacular countryside that houses a farm called Horseland. Each of these main characters has a special horse whose personality is similar to its owner's. Horseland and its unique approach of integrating the personality of the main characters and animals serve to reinforce prosocial themes. Horseland is also a "coming of age" series in which viewers experience and learn from the social interactions, hopes, dreams, and even fears of this group of culturally diverse adolescents. From this background, the experiences of sharing, caring, compromise, friendship, respect, and competition emerge to provide the young viewers with social and emotional guidelines for better understanding many of the life-lessons they need to learn as they grow and develop. This program is specifically designed to further the educational and informational needs of children, has educating and informing children as a significant purpose, and otherwise meets the definition of Core Programming as specified in the Commission's rules.

Include any other comments or information you want the Commission to consider in evaluating your compliance with the Children's Television Act (or use this space for supplemental explanations). This may include information on any other noncore educational and informational programming that you aired this quarter or plan to air during the next quarter, or any existing or proposed non-broadcast efforts that will enhance the educational and informational value of such programming to children. See 47 C.F.R. Section 73.671, NOTES 2 and 3.	WDEF aired PSAs which were of benefit to the youth during 4th quarter of 2011. A complete listing of PSAs which aired during this quarter can be found in our public file. The station sponsored several programs which engaged children and one such program is Golden Apple Award Program. News anchor, Joe Legge through on air announcements, solicited students to nominate a teacher who has had a positive impact on their lives. Then, a teacher was chosen weekly by a panel of judges based on the students comments and highlighted on Tuesdays Newscast at 6 along with the nominating student. The teacher and their school become eligible to win cash prizes at the end of the school year. An example of the Golden Apple segment: Jack Leather loves to get out of the classroom...and away from the text book. On this day, he's turned the stream behind Heritage High into a laboratory. He wants his students to discover what is cool about environmental sciences and chemistry. Student Caroline Walden says she didn't hate science, but Mr. Leather definitely made it more interesting. She respects Leather for his knowledge, attention to safety and ability to take a tough topic and make it easy to understand. Another Golden Apple Segment featured Jill Sewell. She uses books, video, crafts and field trips to keep students loving to learn. Sewell came to Westside Elementary this year after teaching at Antioch Elementary in Whitfield County. It was there she learned an important life lesson she shared with the class. I had a bald head and I wore a hat and not a wig. Sewell survived breast cancer and kept teaching while undergoing treatment. She said one day while sitting among her students she pulled off her hat to expose her bald head to the students. One little boy raised his hand and said, hey Ms. Sewell you look like my grandpa. She then knew it was ok. The ordeal showed her the importance of acceptance...something she learned the importance of first hand and now emphasizes in all her classes. Another initiative sponsored by the station was a news segment called Whats Right With Our Schools. News 12 Anchor John Mercer featured a news segment each Monday during the 6pm newscast highlighting educators, students, individuals or community groups which worked with the students/schools in an extraordinary manner and who went above and beyond the norm in helping to educate children through life lessons. Developing healthy habits at Chefs Night is a good examples of WRWOS. School leaders are taking the extra step when it comes to making sure kids are developing healthy eating habits. Local chefs came to teach the basics at Hardy Elementary. They are educating both students and parents on healthy habits at Chefts night. More than 250 students and parents attended Chefs Night. Another segment -Tech Initiative- John Mercer featured local cable system, Comcast as they unveiled their plans to get internet access into low-income homes. They are partnering with the Urban League of Chattanooga with the Internet Essentials program. Families must qualify for the school lunch program. If they qualify...they can buy a low-cost computer and get internet service to their home for under ten dollars a month. LaFrederick Thirkill is the Principal of Orchard Knob Elementary. He says he is really excited about this program from Comcast. He hopes it can benefit the students and families at Orchard Knob School because they have a WiFi building that's wireless. Mr. Thirkill, says it is a great way to extend the learning beyond the classrooms and into the homes of the students and families. In another outreach program which provided aide to needy children and senior citizens, WDEF and the Salvation Army sponsored the Angel Tree Program. Angel Trees were placed in area malls and at some of the larger employers in the Chattanooga area. The trees contained cardboard angels with the names and sizes of needy children and seniors. Viewers were asked to go by the mall or
